Crown Jewel Of Nebraska
Looks FrowzyBy DON WALTON and LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writers

"It is difficult for Nebraska to realize what it has done, but the people of your nation know—and they look to you for careful preservation of what has become a jewel among historical monuments."

That was the message conveyed to the Nebraska Legislature in the final report of the Capitol Commission dated Jan. 1, 1935.

The jewel, of course, is Nebraska's towering majestic Capitol Building, completed in 1932 ten years after ground-breaking.

Designed by Bertram Grosvenor Goodhue of New York City and constructed by dozens of craftsmen, filled with the gradeur of meticulous sculpture, mosaics and murals, the structure cost nearly $10 million.

It's Irreplaceable

Its value is now conservatively estimated at $100 million—but with the passing of some of the world's great craftsmen and the scarcity of precious stone and metal, the building is clearly irreplaceable at any price.

Have Nebraskans met the responsibility given to them 40 years ago by the Capitol Commission when it handed them custody of the great building?

No, a study conducted by the University of Nebraska College of Architecture, under the direction of Tom Laging and Roger Schluntz, will tell them next month.

But the study, to be published Nov. 1, will also suggest that the damage can largely be repaired.

In many instances, it will suggest, the office function of the Capitol has been given precedence over the preservation function.

The study will ask the governor or the Legislature to establish a preservation program, centering on restoration, alteration and maintenance of the building.

Plywood, Plastic, Paint

It cites makeshift offices, lowered ceilings, plywood partitions, Formica information booths, "store front" security doors, cheap fluorescent lighting, painted trash barrels, broken statuary, home-style draperies and gaudy carpeting as changes which detract from the building.

Grand hallways have been boarded up, the study will claim, while the Rotunda has been cluttered with chrome-plated telephone booths. Some vaulted ceilings have been disguised by low-hung lighting; dramatic balconies have been closed to visitors.

In some cases, lighting fixtures have been taken from the walls, folding chairs have been stored in a fireplace and some painted murals are peeling away.

Glass partitions are erected; plastic name plates are glued on wood doors; crude signs are attached to walls.

Efficiency Vs. Beauty

"Month by month, there are new attempts to improve the building's efficiency at the expense of its integrity and visual attractiveness," it is stated.

"Despite existing inconveniences that still exist for the Capitol workers, no amount of renovation can make the Capitol into a super-efficient office space by modern standards," the report will state.

"Any ill-conceived plans to 'improve' the Capitol must be defeated in advance of implementation before the damage is done."

And the damage "must be undone," the report will declare.

Whenever competition arises between the Capitol's role as an office and its role as a monument, the Capitol's preservation as a monument should be "our primary concern," it will insist.

Matzke Is Concerned Too

Stan Matzke Jr., the state's director of administrative services, shares the architects' concerns for the preservation of the building.

"There are some areas which need to be restored to their original usage," he said.

"I am extremely concerned about the changing atmosphere of the building, but I think we have made fairly significant progress in holding back changes and in restoring areas of the building."

Only recently has the Legislature taken an active interest in appropriating money to recondition the structure.

The past difficulty has been with "people changing the basic decor of the building without any guidelines," but Matzke believes he can see a reawakening interest in protecting the building's integrity.

"I think people are slowly becoming more aware of its historic value," he said.

When the state occupies its new office building north of the Capitol, there will be a new opportunity to renovate and restore space in the Statehouse, he noted.

'This Building Is Nebraska'

Matzke has a special fondness for the building. "I remember being in here when I was 7 years old and my father was a state senator," he recalled. "I can remember the smells. To me, this building is Nebraska. You can't put a value on it."

What Matzke sees as the state's reawakening interest in restoring and preserving the building has produced a recent sandblasting which brightened its exterior, repairs on the massive north steps, improvements in its watering system, the first step in waterproofing and restoring its promenade deck, and proposed new landscaping plans.

"I think the Capitol and its grounds haven't looked better in many years," he said.

Paul Stoehr, superintendent of building and grounds, said 70 people help keep the structure in shape, working in maintenance jobs, operating elevators, keeping security, working on the lawns, giving tours, sweeping up.

Safety improvements are also underway at the building, largely centered on the tower and the elevators. Fire doors are being installed in the tower stairways, and the tower will be basically turned over to storage use in 1977 after the new office building is occupied—although tourists will still be able to view the city from on high.

It all costs money. Estimated expenditures to man, operate, maintain and improve the building reach $1 million a year.

In addition, nearly $500,000 was budgeted for improvement projects at the Capitol this fiscal year.

Electronic Escapee Caught

SALEM, Ill. (AP) — A convicted killer was captured Sunday as a stolen car carrying five federal prison escapees careened into a ditch in front of a church. A pursuing policeman opened fire with a shotgun and said he wounded one of the convicts as they fled into thick woods.

Tracking dogs were called in to follow a trail of blood. Nearly 200 FBI agents, state and local police combed the woods and farmland for the four convicts still at large.

"We haven't given up. We don't think they've slipped through. It's simply a big area," an FBI spokesman said.

Officials said the search centered on a 10-square-mile area about 5 miles east of Salem in Southern Illinois. It is full of abandoned farmhouses and other hiding places, police said.

Two airplanes and a helicopter also helped in the search, officials said. Roadblocks were set up on the few roads leading from the area.

The five long-term convicts had escaped from the federal penitentiary in Marion, Ill., the government's top-security prison. They overpowered a teacher at a prison lecture Friday night and used a sophisticated electronic beeper, built by one of the escapees in a prison workshop, to open the electric locks on the prison gates.

"It wasn't your average type of breakout," said FBI spokesman Jeffrey Maynard. "They didn't just walk out. They jingled the electronic system. They did a good job of getting out."

Arthur J. Mankins, 37, of Germantown, N.C., unable to flee the car after the crash because of a leg injury, was captured at the scene. He is serving a life term for murder.

The escapees remaining at large were Edward P. Roche, 39, of Katonah, N.Y., serving 39 years for two bank robberies; Maurice Philon, 40, of Oakland, Calif., serving a 50-year sentence for bank robbery, assaulting a federal officer and attempted escape; Henry Gargano, 43, of Chicago, serving 199 years for bank robbery and murder, and Dennis D. Hunter, 26, of Salem, Ohio, serving a 25-year sentence for kidnaping, assaulting a federal officer and escape.

The convicts broke into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Dotson in rural Buncombe, Ill., about 20 miles south of the prison, late Saturday evening, state police said.

They left early Sunday morning in the couple's 1964 Rambler with a 20-gauge shotgun and .22-caliber rifle taken from the house, authorities said. The Dotsons were bound and gagged but were not injured.

The escapees headed north, back past Marion, and were spotted about 5 a.m. by a Salem police officer on a road just outside the town 70 miles north of Marion.

Two Salem policemen, in two cars, pursued the car carrying the convicts down Illinois Route 50. Five miles east of the town, the convicts' car attempted a high speed U-turn in front of the New Bethel Presbyterian Church. It crashed through a yard and into a steep roadside ditch.

The four convicts who got out took off on foot into a thickly-wooded area beside the highway. Most of the surrounding country is open farmland.

Wayne Friend, one of the pursuing Salem policemen, said he wounded one of the four men with a shotgun blast as they fled.

"He was apparently hit but not too bad. I couldn't get a second shot off," Friend said.

The shotgun stolen from the Dotson house was found in the abandoned automobile.

Warden Charles Fenton of Marion Federal Penitentiary gave this account of the breakout:

The inmates overpowered an instructor during a history lecture Friday night and took his keys.

Five gates separate the main part of the prison from the front door, but the inmates were able to circumvent two gates by using the teacher's keys.

The escapees opened the remaining gates with an electronic gadget, which is similar to an electric garage-door opener. It was constructed in a shop class by Roche, one of the escapees.

Guards reached the main corridor in time to watch the five inmates scramble through the last gate but could not follow the convicts because they did not have devices to open the electronic gates.

Smallest Bicentennial Community Celebrates

Gross (UPI) — The population of this tiny northeastern Nebraska community grew, unofficially, by 34,900% Sunday.

That may sound ridiculous. But taking into account the fact the permanent population for the smallest incorporated village in the state is two, that kind of growth isn't all that difficult on a Sunday afternoon, especially if there's a good reason.

(The community next month will also become the state's fastest growing village when a new permanent resident moves to town. That addition will mean a 50% population increase.)

The occasion for the increase to a one-day population of 700 was the official recognition of Gross as the nation's smallest incorporated village to receive American Revolution Bicentennial Community status.

Flag Presented

The formal program included the presentation of the bicentennial flag by Don Searcy, director of the Nebraska Bicentennial Commission, and a barbecue.

The informal program was fun.

"It's fantastic," said Mrs. Phyllis Rowles, one of the two permanent residents of Gross and operator of the Nebraska-Inn, who added she really didn't expect 700 to show up for the event.

But they did and "I'm glad of it, except for one thing — I know nearly everybody who showed up."

"One thing's for sure, I don't think there were ever any motorcycle cops in Gross until today," said Wayne Blair of Spencer, whose father and grandfather owned a general store in Gross at the turn of the century.

Law Help Needed

In order to keep tabs on that many people, the town board, made up of Mrs. Rowles and Albert Johnson, called for some law enforcement help and got it. Three state patrolmen and the Boyd County sheriff were there and they had some help from a number of motorcycle enthusiasts in directing traffic.

Mrs. Rowles originally came to Gross over the summer to attend the remarriage of her mother, Mrs. Elsie (Picklapp) Parkhurst. Mrs. Rowles sister, Mrs. Marjorie Stringfellow, died and she decided to take over as the operator of the town's bar. In so doing, Mrs. Rowles gave up being a school teacher at El Monte, Calif., to return to her native Boyd.

Mrs. Rowles' husband, Jack, will account for the village's population explosion next month when he finishes settling family matters in California and moves to Gross.

Gross wasn't always such a tiny town. In fact, area residents claim Sunday's temporary population about equalled the peak population.

But, said Blair, 61, that was a long time ago. He said he thinks the town of his early memories had about 100 residents.

Named for Businessman

The community, which was part of the Ft. Randall, S.D., military reservation, was named after an early businessman named Ben Gross in about 1891 and there were high hopes that a railroad would go through town and make it a permanent spot on the map.

Then disaster struck in about 1906 when the railroad went eight miles to the southwest through Spencer. Blair said the claimed population about that time was 800. That dropped quickly to 100, 20 years later.

There isn't much left of the original town now. In fact, of two banks the only thing left is the 8x10 foot cement vault of one of them. There's also a renovated village well which is still operational. It was at the well that the Gross Bicentennial Committee decided to set up a flagpole to fly the American and bicentennial flags.

During Sunday's program, a number of long-time area residents were recognized, including Mrs. Charles Sinclair, 84, the oldest living person who can claim to have been born on the Ft. Randall Reservation.

Just how deepfelt were those hopes that Gross would never wind up a population oddity?

"Pretty deep," according to Blair.

Omaha Offer Ignored

He cited as an example a situation which involved his own family. It seemed that a man made an offer one day to his grandfather, J. J. Blair. The man wanted to trade what turned out to be half the townsite of Omaha for half interest in the Blair General Store at Gross. "My grandfather had more faith in Gross's future," Blair said. "He didn't think Omaha would ever amount to anything because just across the (Missouri) river was Council Bluffs."

What happened?

The store burned down a short time after the offer was refused and Omaha's population is now 354,389, according to the 1970 census, compared to two — soon three — at Gross and 60,348 at Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Injuries Claim Professor Emeritus Holck Seven Persons
Die In State Road Mishaps

Services are pending for Dr. Harold G. O. Holck, University of Nebraska-Lincoln professor emeritus of pharmacology, who died after being struck by an automobile.

Dr. Holck, 89, died at Lincoln General Hospital early Sunday of injuries suffered in a car-pedestrian accident on D St. between 7th and 8th.

Dr. Holck of 2226 S. 20th was crossing the street when he was hit by a car driven by Jack V. Luetke, 27, of 510 D, police said. No charges are expected to be filed in the incident, police said.

Dr. Holck retired in 1956 after teaching for 19 years at UNL. He was department chairman from 1953 until his retirement, and won high honors for research in barbiturates.

Dr. Holck and his wife, Adela, had recently observed their 50th wedding anniversary at a family celebration in San Rafael, Calif.

He was born in Denmark and immigrated to the United States in 1914. In 1921 he received his bachelor of science degree from the University of Chicago, along with various scholastic honors. In 1928, Dr. Holck received his PhD. in physiology, and was granted a Rockefeller Fellowship to study pharmacology teaching methods.

From 1929 to 1934 he was a professor of pharmacology at the American University in Lebanon. He returned to the University of Chicago's physiology department for one year before coming to UNL in 1936 as the school's first full-time pharmacologist.

After his retirement, Dr. Holck served as a research associate and consultant for UNL's Institute on Cellular Research.

Dr. Holck retained a strong interest in his native land. He received a medal from the Danish king in 1946 for his role in informing the American public of the situation in Denmark during World War II.

He was a member of the American Physiological Society, the American Society of Pharmacology and Experimental Therapeutics, and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He also was past president of the NU Emeriti Association.

Dr. Harold G. O. Holck

Survivors include his wife, Adela; sons, Gunnar of Lincoln and Alfred of San Rafael, Calif.; his brother, Alfred of Copenhagen, Denmark; four grandchildren and a great-granddaughter. Services are being arranged by Hodgman-Splain - Roberts Mortuary, 4040 A St.

Dawson, Minn. (AP) — The Lacqui Parle River doesn't compare with Idaho's Snake River Canyon, but it was enough to stop Harry Lein.

A crowd of more than 1,000 persons — half the population of Dawson — watched Lein gun his riding lawnmower down a small, home-built ramp in an attempt to jump across the 40-foot-wide river Sunday.

He landed in the muddy water 35 feet short of his goal.

The 25-year-old Lein, who said he's the first to admit he's no Evel Knievel, went home and took a bath.

Lein accomplished two things, however. He raised $1,000 for the Dawson Boy Scouts and provided some entertainment for residents of the farm town.

The Nebraska highway fatality toll for the year climbed to 295 Sunday as seven more deaths were reported in the state. A year ago, it was 309.

Three 19-year-old Omahans died Sunday when the small foreign car in which they were riding apparently went out of control and burned about a mile north of Omaha.

The victims were identified by the Douglas County sheriff's office as Daniel W. Darlind, the driver; Robert Caruso, and Kimberly Jensen.

Josephine Harrison, 86, of York was killed Saturday in a two-car crash about a mile south of Norfolk on Highway 81.

The State Patrol said she was a passenger in a car driven by Helen Harrison, 60, of York when it was in collision with a car driven by Walter Knoefler, 27, of Stanton. Mrs. Harrison was reported critically hurt.

Harold Holck, 89, of Lincoln was injured fatally late Saturday night when police said he was struck by a car driven by Jack Luetke, 27, of Lincoln, in Lincoln.

Jeffrey L. Paulson, 16, of Cedar Bluffs, was killed Sunday in a one-car accident on a county road, about a mile southwest of Fremont, the patrol said.

He was a passenger in a car driven by Randy Christ, 16, of Cedar Bluffs, when the patrol said it apparently went out of control and rolled over on its top.

Christ was hurt as another passenger, Scott M. Rounph, 16, also of Cedar Bluffs.

A seventh person was reported dead from an accident last weekend.

The State Patrol said Lloyd A. Sila, 57, Emerson, died from injuries he received Oct. 5 in a tractor crash on Neb. 32, 9.2 miles west of West Point.

Seven Persons
Die In State Road Mishaps

By The Associated Press

The Nebraska highway fatality toll for the year climbed to 295 Sunday as seven more deaths were reported in the state. A year ago, it was 309.

Three 19-year-old Omahans died Sunday when the small foreign car in which they were riding apparently went out of control and burned about a mile north of Omaha.

The victims were identified by the Douglas County sheriff's office as Daniel W. Darlind, the driver; Robert Caruso, and Kimberly Jensen.

Josephine Harrison, 86, of York was killed Saturday in a two-car crash about a mile south of Norfolk on Highway 81.

The State Patrol said she was a passenger in a car driven by Helen Harrison, 60, of York when it was in collision with a car driven by Walter Knoefler, 27, of Stanton. Mrs. Harrison was reported critically hurt.

Harald Holck, 89, of Lincoln was injured fatally late Saturday night when police said he was struck by a car driven by Jack Luetke, 27, of Lincoln, in Lincoln.

Jeffrey L. Paulson, 16, of Cedar Bluffs, was killed Sunday in a one-car accident on a county road, about a mile southwest of Fremont, the patrol said.

He was a passenger in a car driven by Randy Christ, 16, of Cedar Bluffs, when the patrol said it apparently went out of control and rolled over on its top.

Christ was hurt as another passenger, Scott M. Rumph, 16, also of Cedar Bluffs.

A seventh person was reported dead from an accident last weekend.

The State Patrol said Lloyd A. Sila, 57, Emerson, died from injuries he received Oct. 5 in a tractor crash on Neb. 32, 9.2 miles west of West Point.

Dawson, Minn. (AP) — The Lacqui Parle River doesn't compare with Idaho's Snake River Canyon, but it was enough to stop Harry Lein.

A crowd of more than 1,000 persons — half the population of Dawson — watched Lein gun his riding lawnmower down a small, home-built ramp in an attempt to jump across the 40-foot-wide river Sunday.

He landed in the muddy water 35 feet short of his goal. The 25-year-old Lein, who said he's the first to admit he's no Evel Knievel, went home and took a bath.

Lein accomplished two things, however. He raised $1,000 for the Dawson Boy Scouts and provided some entertainment for residents of the farm town.

Hostilities Toll Set At 20,000

By The Associated Press

In a world technically at peace, as many as 20,000 persons have been killed so far this year in shooting conflicts or guerrilla actions in Europe, Africa, the Middle East, South America and Asia, according to official counts and reliable estimates. Many victims were innocent bystanders.

Conflicts continue in Northern Ireland, Argentina and Angola. Portugal and Spain, peaceful havens not long ago, now face unrest in the streets and countryside. There is fighting of an on-again, off-again nature in Lebanon, Ethiopia, Rhodesia and The Philippines. An uneasy truce is reported in Sudan, after 16 years of civil war which a United Nations report says was responsible in one way or another for the deaths of about half a million people.

In Northern Ireland, Roman Catholic factions are pitted against Protestant groups. Moslems and Christians clash in Lebanon, Ethiopia and The Philippines. In Sudan, an alliance of Christians and Animists fought a Moslem-dominated government.

Here is an Associated Press survey of areas where people die by gun and bomb:

ANGOLA — This West African territory scheduled to become independent from Portugal on Nov. 11 has been embroiled in a three-sided civil war for 18 months. Estimates of the number killed vary widely, but diplomats on the scene say a conservative guess is that about 10,000 persons have died, most of them civilians. Three rival black organizations are fighting each other for control of the territory before independence comes. Fighting is heavy, with all sides using mortars, rockets and automatic weapons. The three movements, which had fought against the Portuguese colonial forces for nearly a decade before, are the pro-Soviet Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, the pro-Chinese National Front for the Liberation of Angola, and the non-aligned, Socialist-oriented National Union for the Total Independence of Angola.

ARGENTINA — About 850 persons have been killed in 16 months of battling among factions within the Peronist movement — nearly 600 of them this year alone in guerrilla attacks, bombings, shootings and assassinations. Basically, the conflict pits left against rightist.

ETHIOPIA — Here, Moslems who are dominant in Eritrea province have been fighting for independence from the Christian-dominated central government in Addis Ababa for 13 years. No official death toll has been kept, but diplomats and close observers of the Ethiopian crisis say tens of thousands have been killed. Diplomats and missionaries working in Ethiopia say 10,000 or more have been killed so far this year. The Eritreans claim that the bulk of the casualties are inflicted by government air raids, shellings and burnings of villages in reprisal for guerrilla attacks. The government claims the civilian casualties include people who actively aided the guerrillas and thus were considered combatants.

LEBANON — Police in Beirut, the capital, say more than 6,000 persons have been killed as a direct result of clashes between private armies of Christians and Moslems since April. A major factor in the conflict is a claim by Moslems that while they have grown from a minority in the 1930s to a majority now, the economic and political power remains in the hands of Christians.

NORTHERN IRELAND — The sectarian conflict in this British province called Ulster dates back to 1968 with a Roman Catholic minority claiming social, economic and political discrimination by a Protestant majority. Added to this is a demand by Catholic militants for a link-up with the Catholic-dominated Irish Republic to the south. The over-all death toll is officially listed as 1,335, of whom 363 died in explosions and 419 the victims of assassination. The total includes 982 civilians, of whom 241 were suspected terrorists and 741 innocent bystanders. The death toll for 1975 stands at 191 killed including 175 civilians.

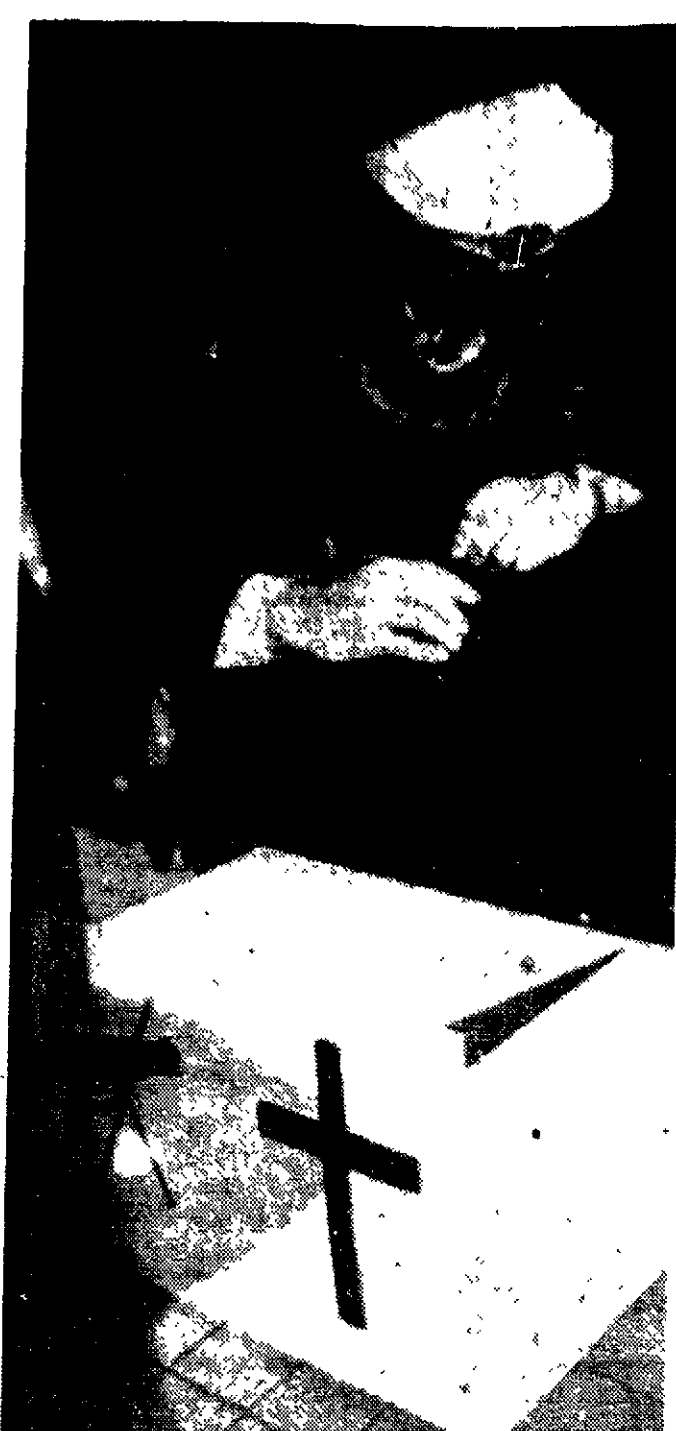

PORTUGAL — A bloodless coup led by moderate leftists chased out an authoritarian rightist regime in April 1974. But since then, the left has splintered with a far-left faction seeking control over a moderate Socialist group that was victorious in elections last spring. The conflict here also involves military units siding with the various political factions. The conflict is mainly one of street demonstrations and inside political maneuvering. Casualties have been relatively low — with a dozen deaths reported over-all since the coup, nine of them in 1975.

RHODESIA — The conflict pits black guerrillas against a government run by the white minority in this former British colony in southern Africa. Rhodesian officials say 636 guerrillas have been killed since the fighting broke out in December 1972, while the death toll of government soldiers and police was put at 74. In addition, the civilian death toll has been put at 278, mostly black Rhodesians. The guerrilla war was launched by the Zimbabwe African National Union, led by the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, who seeks black majority rule in the country.

SPAIN — Basques seeking autonomy for their provinces and underground Communists attack police with growing frequency in Spain, which was regarded as one of the world's most peaceful countries until April 1973. It was then that police killed Basque guerrilla leader Sustaquio Mendizabal, sparking a wave of political violence that has since left 59 persons dead, including 30 policemen. On Dec. 20, 1973 a powerful bomb placed under a Madrid street killed Premier Luis Carrero Blanco and the Basques claimed responsibility for it. The execution last month of five terrorists convicted of killing policemen set off a fresh wave of violence within Spain and wide protests in Europe and elsewhere.

SUDAN — Hostilities began in southern Sudan 16 years ago with Christians and Animists launching a fight for independence from the Moslem-dominated north. United Nations reports say about 500,000 people were killed in the fighting or died of disease or starvation resulting from it. The Sudanese government says peace has been restored through negotiations with southern leaders but a United Nations official who traveled to the south recently said it is uneasy. The government says a short-lived uprising in March killed 12 Moslem soldiers and their commander. But refugees who fled to neighboring Ethiopia said 150 soldiers died in the uprising. They added that 80 rebels were killed in the fighting and another 150 sentenced to death. The government says eight were executed and 42 sentenced to life imprisonment.

THE PHILIPPINES — Moslems in the southern Philippines rose up three years ago, charging that Christians were taking over land in an area of the country that Moslems considered theirs. The conflict has brought the army into combat against Moslem guerrillas. Military casualties are kept secret, but Roman Catholic priests active in the area have estimated that 13,000 civilians have been killed so far. They put the military casualties at 1,500 to 3,000. There are no reliable estimates available of the number of guerrillas killed.

POLICEMAN...inspects guns at church.

18 Guns Collected In Church Offering

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest invited his parishioners to turn the so-called Saturday night specials into a Sunday morning offering by handing their guns in during weekend services.

"Please listen to me," the Rev. Richard Engle, pastor of St. Philip the Apostle Church in suburban Whitehall, told his parishioners Sunday morning. "I am not a nut, I am not a radical, I am not a Communist. I am just a concerned person."

The 50-year-old Engle, a World War II infantryman, started off the donations with his own target pistol, which he has owned for 17 years.

A spokesman for St. Philip's said 18 handguns and as many toy pistols were brought to the church during the six Masses. He added that more than 2,000 persons attended the services, 40 per cent higher than normal.

As Father Engle, dressed in green vestments, greeted parishioners in the brilliant sunshine, six uniformed Columbus policemen checked each weapon to make sure it was empty. The guns are to be melted down into small crosses and distributed to the donors. The box of guns was carried to the altar after Father Engle's sermon where it remained until the end of Mass.

The bearded priest recounted an incident involving a parishioner and a 15-year-old boy who broke into his home and stole five dollars. The parishioner told Father Engle he is afraid he would have shot the young intruder if he had had a gun.

"What value is a 15-year-old boy?" the priest asked. "No thing is worth more than a person's life."

Readings for the Mass were selected to correspond with the theme of the gun collection. The congregation listened to familiar readings, taken from the Book of Isaiah about beating swords into plowshares and the 23rd Psalm — "The Lord is my shepherd." Father Engle read from the Gospel of John that the "greatest commandment is love."

A section of the service also included special prayers for legislators and judges, as well as prayers for the protection of policemen and firemen.

Those who did not own guns were invited to sign petitions calling for a ban on the possession and sale of the Saturday night special, a 15-day cooling off period between sale and possession of handguns and mandatory licensing of all gun owners.

The clergyman said his protest against "the flooding of America with handguns" was conceived after the two attempted assassinations of President Ford and a report by the National Catholic Conference on World Peace which he studied.

"Today's liturgy says to 'walk in the light of the Lord,'" Father Engle said. "But we are walking in the darkness of fear. Our homes have been turned into fortified castles, even arsenals."

Gunmen Strap Bomb To Banker

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — Two masked people armed with rifles strapped a bomb to the back of a banker, threatened to kill him and his wife and forced him to empty his bank vault of a substantial amount of money, the FBI said Sunday.

An FBI spokesman in San Francisco said no one was in custody in connection with the extortion Saturday, but the victims were safe and unharmed. He said the exact amount of money taken was unknown but substantial.

The FBI said the bomb was "inoperative" but would, not elaborate.

A spokesman said the incident started at 2 a.m. Saturday when "two masked individuals" with rifles broke into the home of Herbert Rasmussen, president of the Bank of Loleta in nearby Fortuna.

Eureka is 200 miles north of San Francisco on the California coast.

"They separated his wife and him, and removed her from the house, bound and gagged," said Rasmussen's attorney, John Gromala. "They tied her to a tree near a stream behind the house. It was raining."

"These individuals made threats against their lives unless they complied with the demands."

The FBI said the extortionists strapped to Rasmussen's back a metal box containing what they said was a remote controlled bomb which would go off if he failed to follow instructions. They also taped a microphone to his chest to prevent tips to police. The FBI said the microphone was a dummy.

"At 9:15 a.m., he arrived at the bank with the bomb and the microphone on his body," the FBI reported. "He had been instructed to remove all money from the vault and was told anything he said would be heard on the microphone and if he didn't follow instructions, the bomb would be set off by remote control and his wife would be killed."

According to the FBI and Gromala:

The banker and an employee he had informed about his predicament opened the vault and cleaned out the money.

Rasmussen then went to a parking lot in the Eureka area and left the money. In the lot, he also found his wife's car with a note inside telling him to proceed to the nearby south jetty of Humboldt Bay and wait to be reunited with his wife.

He waited in that area until about 11 a.m. when he called the bank.

At 1 p.m., Mrs. Rasmussen was discovered bound and gagged in a rain-soaked orchard behind the house.

Rasmussen was rushed to General Hospital here with the metal box still strapped to his back. The block was cordoned off and bomb squad experts wheeled a portable x-ray machine into the parking lot to try to determine if the bomb was live. The metal box prevented proper x-raying, however, so bomb experts moved the banker to less populated area to remove and dismantle the device.

"He went through hell," Gromala said of Rasmussen. "He had that thing on his back from the wee morning hours until about 4 p.m."

Tell me, LES...

if you raised your rates only 10%,
how come my bill for August was 70% higher than last year?

OK, let's figure it out.

First of all, due to higher temperatures in August 1975, your air conditioner ran approximately 150% longer — if you maintained the same setting that you did in August 1974. Therefore, your air conditioner worked harder to keep you cool.

Let's say that in August 1974 you used 670 kilowatt-hours and you paid $15.70.

Since that time we have been forced to raise rates twice in order to keep up with rising costs of fuel, materials, and purchased power. One rate increase came in February, and the latest one affected any bills rendered after September 1, 1975.

Your present bill, dated September 3, 1975, shows that you used 1005 kilowatt-hours during the August billing period. The first 670 kilowatt-hours (the same amount used last year) would now cost $18.96.

This would reflect both rate increases and is about 20% more than in August 1974.

In addition to this, however, your usage increased by 335 kilowatt-hours. The additional usage would add another $8.04 to your bill, bringing the total to $27.00 or about 70% higher than in 1974.

It's true that the one-month experience may be startling. However, if you will keep your figures over a 12-month period, you will see that the rate increases have been moderate. With the notation of monthly usage that is printed on your statement, it is also very easy to see that the average household use of electricity is climbing at a steady rate. The average annual residential charge for a kilowatt-hour of electricity in Lincoln is still only 2½¢ and is one of the lowest rates in the nation.

Hostilities Toll Set At 20,000

In a world technically at peace, as many as 20,000 persons have been killed so far this year in shooting conflicts or guerrilla actions in Europe, Africa, the Middle East, South America and Asia, according to official counts and reliable estimates. Many victims were innocent bystanders.

In Northern Ireland, Roman Catholic factions are pitted against Protestant groups. Moslems and Christians clash in Lebanon, Ethiopia and The Philippines. In Sudan, an alliance of Christians and Animists fought a Moslem-dominated government.

Here is an Associated Press survey of areas where people die by gun and bomb:

ANGOLA — This West African territory scheduled to become independent from Portugal on Nov. 11 has been embroiled in a three-sided civil war for 18 months. Estimates of the number killed vary widely, but diplomats on the scene say a conservative guess is that about 10,000 persons have died, most of them civilians. ARGENTINA — About 850 persons have been killed in 16 months of battling among factions within the Peronist movement — nearly 600 of them this year alone in guerrilla attacks, bombings, shootings and assassinations. Basically, the conflict pits leftist against rightist.

ETHIOPIA — Here, Moslems who are dominant in Eritrea province have been fighting for independence from the Christian-dominated central government in Addis Ababa for 13 years. No

NORTHERN IRELAND — The sectarian conflict in this British province called Ulster dates back to 1968 with a Roman Catholic minority claiming social, economic and political discrimination by a Protestant majority. RHODESIA — The conflict pits black guerrillas against a government run by the white minority in this former British colony in southern Africa. Rhodesian officials say 636 guerrillas have been killed since the fighting broke out in December 1972, while the death toll of government soldiers and police was put at 74. In addition, the civilian death toll has been put at 278, mostly black Rhodesians. The guerrilla war was launched by the Zimbabwe African National Union, led by the Rev. 18 Guns Collected In Church Offering

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest invited his parishioners to turn the so-called Saturday night specials into a Sunday morning offering by handing their guns in during weekend services.

"Please listen to me," the Rev. Richard Engle, pastor of St. Philip the Apostle Church in suburban Whitehall, told his parishioners Sunday morning. "I am not a nut, I am not a radical, I am not a Communist. I am just a concerned person."

Those who did not own guns were invited to sign petitions calling for a ban on the possession and sale of the Saturday night special, a 15-day cooling off period between sale and possession of handguns and mandatory licensing of all gun owners.

The clergyman said his protest against "the flooding of America with handguns" was conceived after the two attempted assassinations of President Ford and a report by the National Catholic Conference on World Peace which he studied.

"Today's liturgy says to 'walk in the light of the Lord,'" Father Engle said. "But we are walking in the darkness of fear. Our homes have been turned into fortified castles, even arsenals."

Gunmen Strap Bomb To Banker

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — Two masked people armed with rifles strapped a bomb to the back of a banker, threatened to kill him and his wife and forced him to empty his bank vault of a substantial amount of money, the FBI said Sunday.

An FBI spokesman in San Francisco said no one was in custody in connection with the extortion Saturday, but the victims were safe and unharmed. He said the exact amount of money taken was unknown but substantial.

The FBI said the bomb was "inoperative" but would not elaborate.

A spokesman said the incident started at 2 a.m. Saturday when "two masked individuals" with rifles broke into the home of Herbert Rasmussen, president of the Bank of Loleta in nearby Fortuna.

Eureka is 200 miles north of San Francisco on the California coast.

"They separated his wife and him, and removed her from the house, bound and gagged," said Rasmussen's attorney, John Gromala. "They tied her to a tree near a stream behind the house. It was raining."

"These individuals made threats against their lives unless they complied with the demands."

The FBI said the extortionists strapped to Rasmussen's back a metal box containing what they said was a remote controlled bomb which would go off if he failed to follow instructions. They also taped a microphone to his chest to prevent tips to police. The FBI said the microphone was a dummy.

"At 9:15 a.m., he arrived at the bank with the bomb and the microphone on his body," the FBI reported. "He had been instructed to remove all money from the vault and was told anything he said would be heard on the microphone and if he didn't follow instructions, the bomb would be set off by remote control and his wife would be killed."

According to the FBI and Gromala:

The banker and an employee he had informed about his predicament opened the vault and cleaned out the money.

Rasmussen then went to a parking lot in the Eureka area and left the money. In the lot, he also found his wife's car with a note inside telling him to proceed to the nearby south jetty of Humboldt Bay and wait to be reunited with his wife.

He waited in that area until about 11 a.m. when he called the bank.

At 1 p.m., Mrs. Rasmussen was discovered bound and gagged in a rain-soaked orchard behind the house.

Rasmussen was rushed to General Hospital here with the metal box still strapped to his back. The block was cordoned off and bomb squad experts wheeled a portable x-ray machine into the parking lot to try to determine if the bomb was live. The metal box prevented proper x-raying, however, so bomb experts moved the banker to less populated area to remove and dismantle the device.

"He went through hell," Gromala said of Rasmussen. "He had that thing on his back from the wee morning hours until about 4 p.m."

U.S. Willing To Attend

Washington — The Ford administration, according to officials, has told the Chilean government the United States will attend a proposed meeting of the Organization of American States in Santiago next year only if the Chileans cooperate with an international inquiry into human rights in Chile.

Pope Canonizes Plunkett

Rome — Pope Paul VI canonized Oliver Plunkett, an Irish archbishop who was executed by the British in 1681 on a charge of treason. Speaking in English at a mass in St. Peter's Square, the Pontiff asked on behalf of the Irish people "the precious gift of peace, so urgently needed today." The Pope called the archbishop a "prophet of an ecumenism that we, today, would like to see near."

Hirohito Visits Hawaii

Honolulu — As Emperor Hirohito spent the last full day of his official visit to the United States in Hawaii, thousands of his subjects took photographs of memorials to Americans killed at Pearl Harbor by Japanese pilots 34 years ago. Hawaii has become the main foreign destination for Japanese tourists, and heavy Japanese investments in the islands have caused a controversy.

Males Tops Academically

New York — Tests in the last six years given by the largest federal education research project show young male adults outscoring women in academic achievement. However, women showed a consistently higher achievement than men in writing and music.

Tell me, LES...

if you raised your rates only 10%,
how come my bill for August
was 70% higher than last year?

OK, let's figure it out.

First of all, due to higher temperatures in August 1975, your air conditioner ran approximately 150% longer — if you maintained the same setting that you did in August 1974. Therefore, your air conditioner worked harder to keep you cool.

Let's say that in August 1974 you used 670 kilowatt-hours and you paid $15.70.

Since that time we have been forced to raise rates twice in order to keep up with rising costs of fuel, materials, and purchased power. One rate increase came in February, and the latest one affected any bills rendered after September 1, 1975.

Your present bill, dated September 3, 1975, shows that you used 1005 kilowatt-hours during the August billing period. The first 670 kilowatt-hours (the same amount used last year) would now cost $18.96.

This would reflect both rate increases and is about 20% more than in August 1974.

In addition to this, however, your usage increased by 335 kilowatt-hours. The additional usage would add another $8.04 to your bill, bringing the total to $27.00 or about 70% higher than in 1974.

It's true that the one-month experience may be startling. However, if you will keep your figures over a 12-month period, you will see that the rate increases have been moderate. With the notation of monthly usage that is printed on your statement, it is also very easy to see that the average household use of electricity is climbing at a steady rate. The average annual residential charge for a kilowatt-hour of electricity in Lincoln is still only 2½¢ and is one of the lowest rates in the nation.

Survey: Majority Feels Leadership Deteriorated

By LOUIS HARRIS
By 56 to 39%, a sizable majority of the American people feels that "leadership inside and outside of government in this country" has become worse in the past 10 years. This failure of leadership is widely viewed by the public as a prime cause of the troubled state of affairs in America today.

Recently, the Harris Survey asked a cross section of 1,497 adults nationwide:

"Let me read you some statements some people have made about leadership these days. For each, tell me if you tend to agree or disagree."

STATEMENTS ABOUT LEADERS

Agree Disagree Not Sure

POSITIVE
The country and the world have changed so much, it is hard for leaders to keep up with all the change.

Being a leader today means working harder than others and getting very little thanks for it.

The way leaders have to take all kinds of abuse these days, it is hardly worth it to become a leader in any field these days.

NEGATIVE
The trouble with most leaders is they treat the public as though it had a 12-year-old mentality instead of as grown-up human beings who can take the hard truth on most issues.

The trouble with most leaders is that they don't understand people want better quality of almost everything they have, rather than more quantity.

Most leaders are out for what they can get personally for themselves, instead of what they can do for other people.

The public is not unsympathetic to some of the problems leaders in all fields face:

— A 56-39% majority is aware of the real difficulties leaders face in keeping up with the rapidly changing times. Leaders who have spent 20 years making their way to the top often feel that once they attain a position of leadership, their constituency has changed almost beyond recognition.

— A 55-38% majority believes that "being a leader today means working harder than others and getting very little thanks for it."

However, a 52-40% majority does not feel that "the way leaders have to take all kinds of abuse these days, it is hardly worth it to become a leader in any field."

The public is in effect saying that the job of a leader may be tough, but there is simply no justification for him to withdraw from the challenge of occupying a public office.

Reasons for the public's unwillingness to let leaders off the hook can be found in the following harsh criticisms:

— By nearly three to one, the public believes that most leaders are condescending in their attitude toward the public, "treating it as though it had a 12-year-old mentality, instead of as grown-up human beings who can take the hard truth on most issues."

— By just about the same three-to-one margin, the public also feels that leadership in most fields has sorely misread the current aspirations of the American people. They agree that "the trouble with most leaders is that they don't understand people want better quality of almost everything they have, rather than more quantity."

The public seems to be saying that achieving a higher and higher standard of living is no longer the name of the game in American life.

— By 60 to 30%, a solid majority also raises the familiar cry that "most leaders are out for what they can get personally for themselves, instead of what they can do for other people."

This is a perennial criticism, but today's public is likely to be particularly hard on leaders who put their own personal gain above the public interest.

The bottom line on leadership was evident in this question the Harris Survey asked the cross section:

"Compared to 10 years ago, do you feel the leadership inside and outside of government in this country has become better, worse or stayed about the same?"

LEADERSHIP COMPARED TO 10 YEARS AGO

Better
Worse
Stayed about the same
Not Sure

Despite the public's view that leadership in all sectors has deteriorated, people essentially hope for reform within the framework of an open and democratic society. The challenge, most feel, is to find leaders who are responsive to the changes about them and who understand the public's growing concern for candor and quality, rather than leaders who want to "take care" of the people without allowing them to share the pain and difficulties of solving today's crises.

San Francisco — Nippy evenings of autumn. The sky is full of iced stars. I am coming up on a birthday and if nobody else remembers, the computer does.

The computer writes me a letter: "Happy birthday to you! You have received the computerized horoscope. Yours is so unusual, you have been chosen out of thousands for a scientifically complete reading." (Computer probably says that to all the boys.)

The computer has memorized my name and types it into the message.

The computer would like me to send $15. "A bargain price for this significant document."

With the knowledge offered me, I can know when to play the stock market or the bangtails. When to advance and when to seek a foxhole.

"You be the judge. If within 30 days you do not find this invaluable, your money will be cheerfully refunded."

One thing I like is a cheerful computer. Blinking green eyes. Internals that go clink, clank as your refund falls into the payoff cup.

Well, no less than 186 scientists — 10% of them Nobel Prize winners — got together and said astrology was the bunk.

This didn't cause 1,200 American newspapers to cancel the daily horoscope. When we deal with the reader, we don't star gaze. We watch the circulation figures.

An editor told me he had never had as many phone calls on anything as on the day they left out the horoscope column.

He said: "I don't think we'd have had that many calls if we'd left out Page One."

The scientists, all of them astronomers, astrophysicists and other star watchers, said they had to bum rap astrology because so many people believe in it.

They wanted people to know that science had no part of this myth. Why they needed this disclaimer wasn't clear. It wasn't as though star believers were an endangered species.

Without astrology how would I know I am jovial? Being ruled by Jupiter whose alias is Jove.

The scientists carried no weight at all with women I talked to. Most Jills don't depend only on the newspaper star treks. They go to drug stores and buy paperbacks with day by day forecasts.

One of them said: "What do scientists know about it? They can't even agree on a good weight-losing diet."

"You were born with the sun in Libra and the moon in Sagittarius," the computer wrote. "You are usually preoccupied with one idea or another." (How true!)

Besides their horoscopes many women have invested in biorhythm. These come in computer charts or in wheels you spin to the right day.

Biorhythm figures on your birth date you were programmed to rhythmic ups and downs to last you the rest of your happy life.

A woman who uses biorhythm plus a daily star forecast said: "I'm so confused by today I think I'd better stay in bed. Or else go out and get my hair done."

About those 186 scientific blokes, I'd like to interview their wives. There's a story waiting there.

Fighting For Peace

It is somewhat of a paradox that the Nobel Peace Prize this year goes to a man who unlocked the secrets of the hydrogen bomb for the Soviet Union and whose main cause now — the recognition of human rights in his totalitarian homeland — will likely be at the root of massive dislocations of eastern European society in the future.

Is it the Soviet Union's trust in its own strength — developed in large part by physicist Andrei Sakharov, this year's Peace Prize laureate — that has poised mankind on the brink of war since the end of World War II, or has it been the yearning for dignity and rights — now articulated so courageously by Sakharov — felt by the masses in the slave states dominated by the Soviet Union?

To hear or read Sakharov now, based on reports we have digested, the Soviet scientist and dissident can also be lumped into the cold warrior category because of his steadfast opposition to a "bogus detente."

First the maelstrom, then peace? Like so many western scientists, Sakharov came to learn the horror of his invention and long ago came out against nuclear testing in any form. And if Sakharov is an outspoken critic of detente, much like Soviet poet and exile Alexander Solzhenitsyn, it is only because he feels that the lessening of tension and the corresponding U.S. emphasis on not doing anything to upset the Kremlin permits the Soviet government more room and time in which to crack down on its critics.

Sakharov's recognition by the Nobel committee comes now because of his courageous fight "not only against the about of power and violations of human dignity in all its forms" but also for his fight "for the ideal of a state founded on a principle of justice for all." In simpler terms, in a state where there is little justice for all, he has stood up against his masters and has comforted others who have suffered because they have done the same.

This has not contributed to the immediate realization of real peace in the world, and it works at cross-purposes to the "bogus" peace Sakharov talks about. But if real, lasting peace is ever a condition on this earth, it will be because Sakharov and people like him have demanded it unconditionally and for everybody.

Marijuana Not For Ford

President Ford made it clear in his press conference late last week: "I disapprove of young people using marijuana. I believe the preponderance of the evidence so far is that it is not a healthy habit to have."

The President was called upon to make himself clear because, earlier in the week, he had praised the honesty of his son in admitting to having tried marijuana. As might have been expected, a lot of people jumped to the conclusion that the President saw nothing wrong with grass.

The President, of course, was defending his son's personal sense of honesty, not his use of marijuana. In like manner, Mrs. Ford some time ago did not speak favorably of pre-marital sex, but rather, of the role of parents in dealing with the matter if it happens.

She said she would try to understand such a situation and make the best of it. Now isn't that really what any good parent would and should do?

We have seen convicted murderers with parents who still stood by them, and we admired the parents for it. The point is that parents can be expected to stand by their children, whether they approve or not of everything that the children do.

That, in our opinion, is a far better course of action than abandoning the child who goes against the wishes, desires or even values of their parents. Rather than the criticism they have received, President and Mrs. Ford should be praised for giving the nation an outstanding pattern of behavior to follow.

Their approach has been to seek to establish in their children a high level of moral values, a respect for honest work and a dedication to personal integrity. But they have, also, sought to encourage their children to think for themselves.

In our opinion, that is a pretty good combination. Young people may make some mistakes and they are not likely to do everything as parents would like them to do but they are headed toward a responsible maturity.

We have yet to know of a case with merit in which a child has been banished from the home or ostracized from the family because of a conflict with parental discipline. We need just as much effort or more so in seeking to cope with failure as we do in searching for perfection.

ON TARGET

By DON WALTON
We're broke
Nebraska is about to run out of money, bringing state government to a halt

Now, stop all that cheering. That's not nice. We've got to sit down and figure a way out of this.

First, we'd better call our city cousins. They know all the answers. Get me Mayor Beane.

Hello, Mayor, we're calling from Nebraska. What?
I said we're calling from Nebraska, Mayor. I'm sorry. I'm not sure I can pinpoint your location. Is that street in the Bronx or Brooklyn?

No, no, Mayor. It's a state, a western state. You mean west of the city?
Yeah, a thousand miles or so.

A thousand miles! There are people a thousand miles west of the city?

Yes, Mayor, I know it comes as a surprise to you, but there are some of us out here.

How big are you?
We're at 1 1/2 million now and growing steadily.

A million and a half, eh? Ya wanna be a borough?

No, thanks, Mayor. Listen, the reason we're calling is that we're running into some financial problems and we thought your experience might be of some value to us.

Oh, yeah, how short are you?

Well, I'm not really that short, sir. I just look shorter than I am. I'm about 5-10. Much taller than you and ...

No, no, I mean how short of money are you?

Well, actually, we're not short of money yet. But we're gonna be. We've got about $7 1/2 million left, but we're running out fast. We could be several million short before long.

Several million? How do you do it? We'd love to be several million short.

How we do it is to keep tax rates low. If we ever build up a good reserve, we lower them.

Wait a minute. Is this a crank call? You trying to tell me you sometimes lower taxes? Yep, we do.

I oughta hang up on you. Cut out the fiction or I'm gonna cease this conversation.

Well, I won't press that, sir. Anyway, you see, we've got about $7 1/2 million left and we're running out fast.

Seven and a half million, eh? Will that get you through today?

Oh, that'll last much longer than that, sir. You're kidding? That wouldn't last us three hours.

Well, of course, sir, you're much bigger. How big are you now?

You mean in my stocking feet?
No, no. I mean how many people are in New York City now?

We try not to keep count. They come and go, you know. I could get you a figure. If we added up all the city employees and everyone on welfare, we could come pretty close. But get to the point, okay? I've got to talk with some bankers. They act like they own the joint.

Well, sir, we were wondering if you had any advice for us.

Well, I can tell you not to count on any help from Ford. He won't listen to us. And don't go to Albany except as a last resort. They'll want to take over your town and run it themselves.

We're not a town, sir. We're a state. Oh, that's right. Anyway, forget about getting outside help. You got any assets?

Industrious people and ...
What's that you said?
Industrious people.
Define your terms, please.

Well, Mayor, we have people who do a day's work for a day's wages and ...

You're kidding?

Nope. And we have rich farmland, a relatively clean environment, lots of open space and ...

How do you get there? Can you get there from here?

Sure, Mayor, either by land or air. You have airports?
A few.

Got room for one more citizen?

Sure ... but don't bring anybody other than your family. And don't tell anyone else about it, okay?

Yeah, sure. I'll be on my way as soon as I tell these bankers where they can stuff their notes, and after I make one obscene phone call to Albany.

But, let me warn you, sir, before you come. We've got a financial problem out here. Yeah, tell me about it.

JAMES RESTON

New York — The presidential campaign so far has been a disappointment. No candidate in either party has come forward with a program, a personality or character that seem capable of dealing with the problems of the coming years, but maybe we are looking at this in the wrong way.

The problems of the country and the economic and social expectations of the American people are obviously beyond the talents of any mortal candidate on the scene, but not necessarily beyond the control of the best talents of the nation. Therefore, maybe the question is who can best mobilize those talents, and put together a team of the best men and women we have, or whatever party, to share the burden of leadership.

The objections to this are fairly clear. Outstanding men and women don't want to commit themselves early to a candidate until they know he will be nominated, but there is no reason why the Republican and Democratic Parties should not now be enlisting the best potential cabinet members available and using their thought and energy to lift the level of the political debate and define the issues for decision.

This is not happening now. President Ford has a great advantage in this pre-campaign period, for he has the powers of presidential appointment and decision, but he has not brought even the most talented people in his own party, let alone the nation, into his administration, and his recent appointments tell us more about his past personal and party loyalties than about his vision of the future.

The Democrats have a harder problem. They have so many candidates, who are going nowhere, and so many non-candidates who say they don't want to go anywhere, that the party organization simply stands aside and lets them all run on their own. The party solicits money, but not ideas, and this is odd.

For the Democratic Party still retains the support, if no longer the allegiance, of many of the most analytical and articulate minds in the nation, and it has made no serious effort to bring their thought to bear on the nation's and the party's coming problems.

It seems a long time between now and the first presidential primary election in New Hampshire at the end of the coming winter, and even longer until the Democratic nominating convention at Madison Square Garden next July. But much remains to be done between now and then to define what kind of president we need.

Next July will also be the 200th birthday of the Declaration of Independence. The economic issues of prices and jobs will obviously be important, but the election may very well turn on the historical issue: on which party can best define where we are and where we're going. Not only on who's going to be president but who's going with him in the last years of the 1970's.

Franklin Roosevelt understood this point at the end of the last world war, even in his declining days, better than his Democratic Party successors today. He brought our most distinguished poet, Archibald MacLeish, to Washington not only to head the Office of Facts and Figures, but to articulate the problems of the coming age, and to enlist the thoughts, paragraphs, arguments and slogans of the intellectual community in this enterprise.

No such effort is going on now in either party. The parties are divided on candidates but challenged by history to reduce the confusion and diversity of the present into some kind of identity or meaning that the people can understand, but instead they are standing aside and leaving the national debate to the distracted candidates and hurried and exhausted slogans of the past.

So, it is no wonder that the campaign so far has been a disappointment, and seems almost an irrelevant conflict between

"Good Old Jerry" and the hard facts of prices and unemployment. For both parties are concentrating on the intellectual bankruptcy of the other, and parading their candidates, who have very little to say.

Individually, Ford, Reagan, Humphrey, Jackson, Kennedy, Muskie, and all the other candidates and non-candidates are either depressing the country or putting it to sleep, but together in either party, they are not at all bad, and probably better than we have had for many years.

But they are separate so far, and divided and confused, unable to make clear their personal or party policies.

If you talk to them separately, you find a common thread: they all sense that the old techniques are not working, that a frightful queerness has come into life, that events are beyond their control. They are recklessly frank in private. When they spread out the facts and follow the trends into the future, they have a shrinking and fugitive sense that something is happening to them and the nation, so that life will never be quite the same again.

But they go on again as before, isolated with the same old arguments and political tricks, knowing the world is different, but not quite knowing what to do about it.

Gas Shortage Seen As Hoax

WASHINGTON — The federal government is conspiring with the oil and gas interests to hit the American people with another shortage this winter. This time it will be a shortage of natural gas.

Enough natural gas is available, according to congressional experts, to heat homes and run factories. It simply isn't being delivered. The industry is holding out for higher prices, the experts charge.

The Federal Power Commission, which is supposed to protect the public from price gouging, allegedly is letting the oil and gas barons get away with it. A confidential memo, prepared by the staff of the House energy subcommittee, details how the conspiracy works to curtail the flow of gas to the consumers.

Stated simply, the producers contracted to deliver more gas to the pipelines than is coming through. The memo charges that a staggering 31% of the gas promised to the pipelines under contract isn't being delivered.

The memo cites Transco, a major East Coast pipeline, as an example. "Only about one-third of the producers are delivering the minimum quantities" which the contracts call for. This has forced Transco, in turn, to curtail its supply to consumers.

Nationwide, the curtailments are similar. "There is little doubt that the failure to deliver under these contracts is the major cause for the shortage," the memo states.

The congressional experts reason that the producers would never have signed the contracts in the first place if the gas weren't available. At the time the contracts were executed, the producers knew how large their gas reserves were. They would never have agreed to deliver more gas than they could produce, the experts conclude.

In the opinion of its own lawyers, the Federal Power Commission has the legal authority to enforce the contracts and to make the gas producers deliver. Yet the reluctant regulators have taken no action. The House investigators think they know why.

The oil and gas profiteers want to be free to raise prices. President Ford and the FPC are willing to let them have higher prices as an incentive to develop more gas.

"The objective of significantly higher prices through deregulation is probably the key factor why we have not had an active pursuit by the FPC with regard to these nonproductive, but dedicated, reserves," declares the memo.

The gas producers claim, of course, there are valid reasons why they aren't delivering on the contracts. But the memo points out that the amount of withheld gas has increased each year since deregulation became a possibility. The pattern suggests that the cutbacks have been arbitrary. The producers are holding out, the experts think, for deregulation and higher prices.

"It is clear that until speculative anticipations are removed," states the memo, "producers will withhold supplies." These "speculative anticipations," of course, are the higher prices that the producers expect deregulation to bring.

Congress is now considering lifting the price controls on interstate natural gas. This would cut the ropes on the gas balloon and cause the price of natural gas to shoot up 450%, according to an estimate by the industry itself.

The impact on the consumers — and the economy as a whole — would be devastating. Most estimates place the cost of deregulation between $9 billion and $11 billion.

Shades Of Mussolini!

ROME — America's image in Italy has been dealt a severe blow by the incredible shortsightedness of several United States senators, a score of congressmen and several National Security Council officials who recently received in Washington leaders of Italy's neo-Fascist party, the Italian Social Movement (MSI).

MSI leader Giorgio Almirante and his two lieutenants, former MSI Senator Mario Tedeschi and ex-Ambassador Francesco Cavalletti, returned to Rome in a triumphal spirit, claiming they had received support in Washington for their political views, especially concerning the Communist "peril" in Italy.

Despite a U.S. Embassy advance warning to the State Department, the three Italian Fascists, who entered the United States as tourists, were, according to Embassy sources, received by Sens. Byrd, Eagleton, Pastore, Domenici, Thurmond, and Helms as well as 13 congressmen. They also met in the Executive Office Building with National Security Council advisers.

Even if these members of Congress and National Security Council officials were not alerted by the State Department to the damaging effect that such attention to leaders of the most discredited political party in Italy was bound to have, common sense should have made them aware of it.

It has already led to a furor in Italian political circles. Italy's most reputable newspapers have expressed shocked amazement and strong criticism. Milan's Corriere Della Sera, one of the country's leading newspapers, called the event "an incredible blunder."

A spokesman for U.S. Ambassador John Volpe, who was described as extremely upset over the affair, said the Embassy was "dismayed and appalled" that the reception given Almirante and his lieutenants in Washington was being construed in Italy as U.S. "sympathy with and encouragement of" the MSI.

Ambassador Volpe realizes the attention given to the matter in the Italian press is likely to intensify anti-American sentiment in Italy. The MSI, which polled only 9% of the national vote in the last elections, is regarded as the successor of Mussolini's ruthlessly totalitarian Fascist party. The only reason it is called neo-Fascist is because the Fascist party is outlawed in Italy.

If the American senators and congressmen who received Almirante had taken the trouble to check on his record, they might have had second thoughts about giving him the opportunity to make political capital at America's expense out of his meetings with them.

He was under secretary of state for education and propaganda in Mussolini's last puppet government, and, as such, was accused after the war of being a "mass-killer and torturer of Italians." He sought libel action against Socialist party officials for publishing such charges and four different courts acquitted the latter. The last time the charges were upheld was three years ago, when a Modena court ruled that the Socialist defendants had "proved the fact."

The mass murderer charges were based on a 1944 decree signed by Almirante which ruled that Italian men failing to enroll in the collapsing Italian army would be executed without trial. Hundreds of youths reportedly were shot by Fascists enforcing the decree.

In 1970 Almirante said "now and forever I have the word Fascist written on my forehead." He described the MSI as a party that "can conduct battles in the streets as well as maneuvers in parliament." MSI hoodlums have been involved in violent street demonstrations as well as attacks on anti-Fascist high school students.

The 60-year-old political heir of Mussolini fascism, whose parliamentary immunity was lifted two years ago, is still facing criminal charges that he has recreated the Fascist party under the name of the Italian Social Movement.

The congressional faux pas in giving the Italian fascist leaders such a build-up appears to be another example of the dangers involved in apparently naive members of Congress attempting to play a greater role in the conduct of American foreign policy.

Fighting For Peace

It is somewhat of a paradox that the Nobel Peace Prize this year goes to a man who unlocked the secrets of the hydrogen bomb for the Soviet Union and whose main cause now — the recognition of human rights in his totalitarian homeland — will likely be at the root of massive dislocations of eastern European society in the future.

Is it the Soviet Union's trust in its own strength — developed in large part by physicist Andrei Sakharov, this year's Peace Prize laureate — that has poised mankind on the brink of war since the end of World War II, or has it been the yearning for dignity and rights — now articulated so courageously by Sakharov — felt by the masses in the slave states dominated by the Soviet Union?

To hear or read Sakharov now, based on reports we have digested, the Soviet scientist and dissident can also be lumped into the cold warrior category because of his steadfast opposition to a "bogus detente."

First the maelstrom, then peace? Like so many western scientists, Sakharov came to learn the horror of his invention and long ago came out against nuclear testing in any form. And if Sakharov is an outspoken critic of detente, much like Soviet poet and exile Alexander Solzhenitsyn, it is only because he feels that the lessening of tension and the corresponding U.S. emphasis on not doing anything to upset the Kremlin permits the Soviet government more room and time in which to crack down on its critics.

Sakharov's recognition by the Nobel committee comes now because of his courageous fight "not only against the about of power and violations of human dignity in all its forms" but also for his fight "for the ideal of a state founded on a principle of justice for all." In simpler terms, in a state where there is little justice for all, he has stood up against his masters and has comforted others who have suffered because they have done the same.

This has not contributed to the immediate realization of real peace in the world, and it works at cross-purposes to the "bogus" peace Sakharov talks about. But if real, lasting peace is ever a condition on this earth, it will be because Sakharov and people like him have demanded it unconditionally and for everybody.

Marijuana Not For Ford

President Ford made it clear in his press conference late last week: "I disapprove of young people using marijuana. I believe the preponderance of the evidence so far is that it is not a healthy habit to have."

The President was called upon to make himself clear because, earlier in the week, he had praised the honesty of his son in admitting to having tried marijuana. As might have been expected, a lot of people jumped to the conclusion that the President saw nothing wrong with grass.

The President, of course, was defending his son's personal sense of honesty, not his use of marijuana. In like manner, Mrs. Ford some time ago did not speak favorably of pre-marital sex, but rather, of the role of parents in dealing with the matter if it happens.

She said she would try to understand such a situation and make the best of it. Now isn't that really what any good parent would and should do?

We have seen convicted murders with parents who still stood by them, and we admired the parents for it. The point is that parents can be expected to stand by their children, whether they approve or not of everything that the children do.

That, in our opinion, is a far better course of action than abandoning the child who goes against the wishes, desires or even values of their parents. Rather than the criticism they have received, President and Mrs. Ford should be praised for giving the nation an outstanding pattern of behavior to follow.

Their approach has been to seek to establish in their children a high level of moral values, a respect for honest work and a dedication to personal integrity. But they have, also, sought to encourage their children to think for themselves.

In our opinion, that is a pretty good combination. Young people may make some mistakes and they are not likely to do everything as parents would like them to do but they are headed toward a responsible maturity.

We have yet to know of a case with merit in which a child has been banished from the home or ostracized from the family because of a conflict with parental discipline. We need just as much effort or more so in seeking to cope with failure as we do in searching for perfection.

We're broke. Nebraska is about to run out of money, bringing state government to a halt.

Now, stop all that cheering, That's not nice. We've got to sit down and figure a way out of this.

First, we'd better call our city cousins. They know all the answers. Get me Mayor Beane.

Hello, Mayor, we're calling from Nebraska. What? I said we're calling from Nebraska, Mayor. I'm sorry. I'm not sure I can pinpoint your location. Is that street in the Bronx or Brooklyn?

No, no, Mayor. It's a state, a western state. You mean west of the city? Yeah, a thousand miles or so.

A thousand miles! There are people a thousand miles west of the city?

Yes, Mayor, I know it comes as a surprise to you, but there are some of us out here.

How big are you? We're at 1 1/2 million now and growing steadily.

A million and a half, eh? Ya wanna be a borough?

No, thanks, Mayor. Listen, the reason we're calling is that we're running into some financial problems and we thought your experience might be of some value to us.

Oh, yeah, how short are you?

Well, I'm not really that short, sir. I just look shorter than I am. I'm about 5-10. Much taller than you and . . .

No, no, I mean how short of money are you?

Well, actually, we're not short of money yet. But we're gonna be. We've got about $7 1/2 million left, but we're running out fast. We could be several million short before long.

Several million? How do you do it? We'd love to be several million short.

How we do it is to keep tax rates low. If we ever build up a good reserve, we lower them.

Wait a minute. Is this a crank call? You trying to tell me you sometimes lower taxes? Yep, we do.

I oughta hang up on you. Cut out the fiction or I'm gonna cease this conversation.

Well, I won't press that, sir. Anyway, you see,

we've got about $7 1/2 million left and we're running out fast.

Seven and a half million, eh? Will that get you through today?

Oh, that'll last much longer than that, sir. You're kidding? That wouldn't last us three hours.

Well, of course, sir, you're much bigger. How big are you now?

You mean in my stocking feet? No, no. I mean how many people are in New York City now?

We try not to keep count. They come and go, you know. I could get you a figure. If we added up all the city employees and everyone on welfare, we could come pretty close. But get to the point, okay? I've got to talk with some bankers. They act like they own the joint.

Well, sir, we were wondering if you had any advice for us.

Well, I can tell you not to count on any help from Ford. He won't listen to us. And don't go to Albany except as a last resort. They'll want to take over your town and run it themselves.

We're not a town, sir. We're a state. Oh, that's right. Anyway, forget about getting outside help. You got any assets?

Industrious people and . . . What's that you said? Industrious people. Define your terms, please.

Well, Mayor, we have people who do a day's work for a day's wages and . . .

You're kidding?

Nope. And we have rich farmland, a relatively clean environment, lots of open space and . . .

How do you get there? Can you get there from here?

Sure, Mayor, either by land or air. You have airports? A few.

Got room for one more citizen?

Sure . . . but don't bring anybody other than your family. And don't tell anyone else about it, okay?

Yeah, sure. I'll be on my way as soon as I tell these bankers where they can stuff their notes, and after I make one obscene phone call to Albany.

But, let me warn you, sir, before you come. We've got a financial problem out here.

Yeah, tell me about it.

JAMES RESTON

New York — The presidential campaign so far has been a disappointment. No candidate in either party has come forward with a program, a personality or character that seem capable of dealing with the problems of the coming years, but maybe we are looking at this in the wrong way.

The problems of the country and the economic and social expectations of the American people are obviously beyond the talents of any mortal candidate on the scene, but not necessarily beyond the control of the best talents of the nation. Therefore, maybe the question is who can best mobilize those talents, and put together a team of the best men and women we have, or whatever party, to share the burden of leadership.

The objections to this are fairly clear. Outstanding men and women don't want to commit themselves this early to a candidate until they know he will be nominated, but there is no reason why the Republican and Democratic Parties should not now be enlisting the best potential cabinet members available and using their thought and energy to lift the level of the political debate and define the issues for decision.

This is not happening now. President Ford has a great advantage in this pre-campaign period, for he has the powers of presidential appointment and decision, but he has not brought even the most talented people in his own party, let alone the nation, into his administration, and his recent appointments tell us more about his past personal and party loyalties than about his vision of the future.

The Democrats have a harder problem. They have so many candidates, who are going nowhere, and so many non-candidates who say they don't want to go anywhere, that the party organization simply stands aside and lets them all run on their own. The party solicits money, but not ideas, and this is odd.

For the Democratic Party still retains the support, if no longer the allegiance, of many of the most analytical and articulate minds in the nation, and it has made no serious effort to bring their thought to bear on the nation's and the party's coming problems.

It seems a long time between now and the first presidential primary election in New Hampshire at the end of the coming winter, and even longer until the Democratic nominating convention at Madison Square Garden next July. But much remains to be done between now and then to define what kind of president we need.

Next July will also be the 200th birthday of the Declaration of Independence. The economic issues of prices and jobs will obviously be important, but the election may very well turn on the historical issue: on which party can best define where we are and where we're going. Not only on who's going to be president but who's going with him in the last years of the 1970's.

Franklin Roosevelt understood this point at the end of the last world war, even in his declining days, better than his Democratic Party successors today. He brought our most distinguished poet, Archibald MacLeish, to Washington not only to head the Office of Facts and Figures, but to articulate the problems of the coming age, and to enlist the thoughts, paragraphs, arguments and slogans of the intellectual community in this enterprise.

No such effort is going on now in either party. The parties are divided on candidates but challenged by history to reduce the confusion and diversity of the present into some kind of identity or meaning that the people can understand, but instead they are standing aside and leaving the national debate to the distracted candidates and hurried and exhausted slogans of the past.

So, it is no wonder that the campaign so far has been a disappointment, and seems almost an irrelevant conflict between

"Good Old Jerry" and the hard facts of prices and unemployment. For both parties are concentrating on the intellectual bankruptcy of the other, and parading their candidates, who have very little to say.

Individually, Ford, Reagan, Humphrey, Jackson, Kennedy, Muskie, and all the other candidates and non-candidates are either depressing the country or putting it to sleep, but together in either party, they are not at all bad, and probably better than we have had for many years.

But they are separate so far, and divided and confused, unable to make clear their personal or party policies.

If you talk to them separately, you find a common thread: they all sense that the old techniques are not working, that a frightful queerness has come into life, that events are beyond their control. They are recklessly frank in private. When they spread out the facts and follow the trends into the future, they have a shrinking and fugitive sense that something is happening to them and the nation, so that life will never be quite the same again.

But they go on again as before, isolated with the same old arguments and political tricks, knowing the world is different, but not quite knowing what to do about it.

Omaha Woman Found Guilty In Double Fatality

Omaha (AP) — A district court jury has found Kathryn Jolene Chapple, 38, of Omaha guilty of two counts of felony motor vehicle homicide.

The jury returned its verdict Friday, one month after another jury had been unable to reach a verdict in the case.

Miss Chapple was charged March 10 after a car carrying her and a man crossed the median of Interstate 480 near Bancroft Street in Omaha and struck another vehicle head-on.

Two occupants of the other car were killed. They were Nathan Becerra, 24, and his wife Debra, 23, of Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Miss Chapple and Sylvester Criss, 48, of Omaha both got out of the car before police reached the accident scene, and each testified during both trials that the other was driving.

Unseasonably warm temperatures continued in Nebraska Sunday, breaking records throughout the state.

A 93-degree high in Lincoln was the hottest ever recorded on an Oct. 12. The previous high of 92 degrees was reached in 1899.

Omaha, with the state high of 95, set a new record, and Norfolk equaled its 1917 record with 90 degrees.

Balmy temperatures in the rest of the state were in the mid to upper 80s in the central to the 60s in the north and west.

Assessor Reviewing Property Tax Exemptions

Omaha (AP) — The Douglas County assessor's office is reviewing hundreds of tax exemptions granted to non-profit institutions in an effort to find if those that may be invalid under state law.

Assessor Frank Bemis said he has already discovered what he believes to be violations and is currently in a dispute with the Board of Equalization over such exemptions.

Bemis said the review concerns exemptions sometimes granted for vacant property owned by churches, hospitals, educational and other charitable institutions.

Omaha Woman Found Guilty In Double Fatality

Omaha (AP) — A district Court jury has found Kathryn Jolene Chapple, 38, of Omaha guilty of two counts of felony motor vehicle homicide.

The jury returned its verdict Friday, one month after another jury had been unable to reach a verdict in the case.

Miss Chapple was charged March 10 after a car carrying her and a man crossed the median of Interstate 480 near Bancroft Street in Omaha and struck another vehicle headon.

Two occupants of the other car were killed. They were Nathan Becerra, 24, and his wife Debra, 23, of Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Miss Chapple and Sylvester Criss, 48, of Omaha both got out of the car before police reached the accident scene, and each testified during both trials that the other was driving.

Columbus Left In Dark After Car Hits Pole

Columbus (AP) — The city of Columbus was without electricity for about five hours Saturday night, as was part of a rural area west of the city, after a car struck a power pole, breaking it off.

The accident occurred about two miles northwest of Columbus. A Platte County sheriff's office spokesman said two of the three persons in the car were released from a hospital after treatment. The third was hospitalized but apparently not seriously hurt.

'Toy' Combine Harvests Soybean Test Plots

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Dr. Jim Williams has a marvelous new combine, a toy combine, just like Dad's except it's a lot smaller and collects grain in a metal drawer on the bottom instead of a grain bin on top.

The toy is really a research device which has taken much of the hand labor out of harvesting of soybean plots. With the purchase of a new sacking device, the machine will be even easier to run.

The combine is a Hege 125 B, made in Germany and powered by a Volkswagen engine. It was considerably modified from the original construction by university agronomists and some engineers.

"This is our first year with it. We are vastly pleased with it, but it does have some problems which we must work out. We are sure it will be a great help in running yield tests on new varieties," said Williams.

Running yield tests involves harvesting tiny two row plots just a few feet long, removing a numbered tag from the plants and putting the tag on a bag with the beans harvested from that plot.

The tiny combine takes two rows at a time and produces a small sack of seed from each plot.

"It sure beats the way we did it last year. We cut the plants off with a sharpened shovel and bundled them into packages that were harvested in a stationary machine later. This is at least twice, perhaps 3 times, as fast," said Dennis White, a field technician working with the combine. The three man crew consists of White, who bags the beans, LES KORTE . . . drives combine with plywood reel to stop tangling of tall varieties.

Les Korte, who drives the combine and Rick Hartung, who makes sure all the plants from each plot get inside of the machine. They can harvest a lot of plots on a good day when everything is working properly.

"We really could have used two or three rainy days to work on the machine, but it seems to be working well. We want to make some more modifications on it before we can save seed from the plots because of the danger of mixing seed to be used for research. It has greatly increased our ability to evaluate yield potential of untried varieties," Williams said.

Williams is primarily a soybean breeder who is trying to develop a new variety suitable for Nebraska weather.

Most of his new varieties are still in the stage of being just a number, but each year he is one step closer to releasing a variety tailored to Nebraska's specific weather problems.

The tiny red German-made combine is really a helpful tool in Williams' research.

It cost about $7,000, but is much cheaper than a somewhat better American model developed in Iowa for around $26,000. "It was originally developed for use with small grains, so we have had to modify it some," Williams said.

Poultry Men Set Meeting Dec. 3-4

The annual convention for the Nebraska Poultry Industries is scheduled for Dec. 3-4.

Nebraska Poultry Industries Inc. is an organization which represents all segments of the Nebraska poultry industry.

The theme for the convention centers around business management, and the outlook for poultry producers and allied business firms.

U.S. Farmers Have Stake In Tax Credit

Chicago — The nation's farmers have an important direct stake in the current congressional consideration of investment tax credits, Emmett Barker, executive secretary of the Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute, said.

The investment tax credit on farm machinery currently is 10%. But it will revert back to 7% at the end of 1976 unless Congress decides to continue it at the present level or even increase it to 12% as some have proposed.

"I'm afraid too many people think of the investment tax credit only as some benefit to big business and overlook the fact it is of major importance to farmers, contractors, and others," Barker said. "If it is allowed to revert back to 7% it would have the effect of increasing the farmer's cost of buying machinery more than 3%."

The investment tax credit reduces the net cost of farm machinery to farmers.

If a farmer buys a $10,000 piece of machinery, he currently receives an investment tax credit of $1,000 which reduces his income tax by that amount and has the effect of reducing the cost of the piece of machinery to $9,000.

If the credit reverts back to 7%, the tax credit on a $10,000 machine would be reduced to $700 and the net result would be that the cost of the piece of machinery would go up $300 — from $9,000 to $9,300.

However, if the investment tax credit is increased to 12%, the effect would be to reduce the cost to $8,800 from the present net cost of $9,000.

Snafu Costs Tecumseh $9,526

Tecumseh — The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) of office in Kansas City has apparently misplaced the forms for the sewer lagoon project in Tecumseh. Consequently, the city has never received the December 1974 installment of the federal government's share of the project cost. The city has registered warrants twice with the Johnson County Bank at 8 1/2% interest to pay for the project in lieu of the federal share. Interest on the warrants has compounded to $9,526 and continues to grow, city officials said.

Gretna Dedicates Park To Donor

Gretna — In 1919, Mr. and Mrs. Christian A. Peterson donated land for this city's first park. Finally, in 1975, city residents and officials proclaimed the site Peterson Memorial Park. Peterson was a pioneer farmer in the Gretna area. Even after retirement, he continued to tend the park, planting trees and shrubbery. "The city council wants to recognize all the good he has done for Gretna and express our appreciation," Park Board Commissioner Lyle Alberry said at the dedication ceremony.

Spotlight on Agriculture

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Farmers everywhere are disgusted with the politics that have taken over the grain markets. They are just plain angry about bans on sales to Russia and Poland after promises that there would be no export controls.

Even with the partial lifting of export restrictions, they feel betrayed. A totally free world market is necessary to give them the incentive to plant a huge crop. The world needs the food and they want to grow it — but only at a profit.

Farmers are being described as "stubborn sellers" by some in the grain trade. Some poorly financed farmers are being sold out by their bankers, production credit associations and other lenders. Most feel, however, that they are in a pretty solid position economically. Every time their costs go up they get meaner about selling grain below the cost of production.

The nation's dairymen finally convinced the government to put some restrictions on dairy products imported from countries that have hoof and mouth disease and rinderpest . . . two diseases we fortunately don't have in the U.S.

Undoubtedly, a part of the protest was an effort to head off dairy imports that compete with U.S. products, but the threat of the disease was very real. The effect on dairy product prices in the store will be minimal.

identified on the label pays off in better markets for their product.

The association reasons that if consumers can be convinced that soy oil is better, they won't buy palm oil or other cheaper and often cholesterol-filled products.

In Italy it seems to be working well. The association has launched a campaign to advertise soy oil in that land, where olive oil was a staple product for centuries.

Some feedlot operators have run into a new problem from the ban on using DES for feeder cattle.

They have used an injection of DES to abort heifers for years, but that is prohibited by the ban enacted by the U.S. Senate.

Apparently the ban is so strict that it cannot be used to abort breeding stock accidentally bred to the wrong bull. It isn't a major problem, but is an added aggravation in the life of a cattleman.

Many grain firms are increasing their storage capacity to avoid storage on the ground and to try to spread out the shipping season.

The building with possibly the largest single storage capacity in the whole U.S. is a new silo with 15 inch walls, 105 feet in diameter and 124 feet high. It is equipped with a domed steel roof that stretches the building 140 feet from the ground to produce a total estimated storage capacity of a million bushels.

Guess what they call it — Fat Albert after the Saturday morning TV cartoon show. Fat Albert lives in Albert City, Iowa. Where else?

The next cattle on feed report ought to show some increase in the number being fattened for market. Sales of feeder cattle have been well above levels of a year ago for the past three weeks.

Agribusinessmen suggest that a lot of them must be going from the sale barn to the slaughter plant, but the increase in the weight of the average head of cattle at the market says no, they are being put in feedlots.

Weekly Grain Report

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The crop report issued Friday isn't nearly as important as what happens to the crop due to political and labor considerations.

Will the government really allow unlimited export of our tremendous supply of grain for seed, wheat and soybeans? My guess is not quite unlimited sales but close to it.

A limiting factor on upward movement, in addition to the huge crop, is the physical ability to move grain to ports and get it loaded onto ships. There is no shortage of shipping and the railroads have increased their capacity to move grain. If labor will load the stuff, we can sell a record amount.

Livestock producers are waiting in the wings with a lot of unused capacity to feed cattle, hogs or poultry. A drop in grain prices will be offset considerably by an immediate increase in the placement of cattle in the hatch of turkey and broiler flocks, and a decrease in gilts to the market.

The slow start of the 1976 wheat crop in many areas is another strong price factor. Reports of a shorter wheat crop will intensify efforts to acquire much of the 1975 wheat crop by hungry nations around the world. Feed grains and soybeans will tend to follow the wheat market to a limited extent.

Farmers have a lot of built-in resistance to lower prices, as was demonstrated this summer. They have ample storage, fear prices below the production costs and are stirred up against lower prices by their leaders.

If you are a smoker, you may be smoking less tobacco and not even know it. Tobacco growers complain that their crop is being used less in thinner smokes.

For example, 1,000 cigarettes used up 1,907 pounds of tobacco last year. That's compared to 1,911 pounds a year ago and way down from the 2,700 pounds used in 1,000 cigarettes from 1950-1954.

The Common Market is putting out supporting funds for its tobacco crops. They are growing the stuff in Brazil in increasing amounts.

Once only a coffee producer, Brazil is becoming a real threat to U.S. soybean and tobacco growers in the world market.

Some experts feel that as their population grows and becomes more affluent, they will absorb most of their local production. But until then there will be export competition.

Soybean growers ought to be thankful to their American Soybean Association for some forward thinking. The growing effort to get soy oil products

Check Before You Order By Mail

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

"Special offer!"
"You can own it by merely mailing your check or money order today."

However, the special offer may exist only for the benefit of the advertiser — and you're out your cash! Unless you're dealing with a major retailer or one with which you are familiar, paying in advance for such items offered through mail order is strongly discouraged.

The Consumer Protection Division of Nebraska Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas' office recommends paying the extra charge for C.O.D. and being assured the item is delivered before being out any money.

Noting that mail order complaints lead the list handled by Better Business Bureaus throughout the country, Lois M. Tefft, manager of the Better Business Bureau of Lincoln, urges consumers to check with her office prior to placing a mail order with an unfamiliar firm.

"If we don't have anything on the company, just give us a few days," she said, noting the Lincoln office will contact the Better Business Bureau in the area where the firm is allegedly located and get a reply within a few days.

But if such a check turns up a negative report or no report at all, then you'd better ignore that "special offer" or send for an item C.O.D.

And if you do send for something C.O.D., the Consumer Protection Division advises consumers to inspect the item if possible before paying the C.O.D. charges.

However, Lincoln Post Office officials contend that inspection time for mail delivery by C.O.D. is not permitted and that the consumer should pay for it or refuse it, but the parcel cannot be opened.

If the parcel is damaged and the consumer accepts it, he or she should then file a claim with the post office for damages incurred in the mail.

However, if it is damaged or the contents of the package were not what was ordered, once the consumer has accepted delivery of the parcel, he or she may face a problem in dealing with the company — if it is not reliable.

The majority of mail order companies are legitimate and honest, but unfortunately a few are not, officials point out.

According to a check of the Consumer Protection Division files, a New Jersey man paid $170 to a Nebraska firm for an item and has nothing because the contents were damaged; the company won't make a refund to him until there is a settlement between the firm and the carriers.

Another gimmick — according to the Consumer Protection Division — involves a service charge if an item is returned.

For example, one Nebraska company is under investigation for a radio product it sells through mail order for $11, with a "money-back" guarantee allegedly included. However, if the radio product is returned, the consumer is assessed a $2 to $4 service charge with only a portion of the total purchase price being refunded.

Other companies just never send the merchandise.

Jerry Fennell, head of the consumer protection division, notes that many large mail order firms have gone out of business, gone bankrupt, etc., in recent years, so consumers should check the Better Business Bureau which has information on such companies.

This has happened with a major mail order record firm which filed bankruptcy — and the only way the consumer has any hope of getting his money or a portion thereof returned is to file a claim with a bankruptcy judge.

One Lincoln man ordered a special record album for $10.98 and sent an additional $3.20 for handling charges.

A few months after placing the order, on two occasions, he wrote the firm reminding it that he still had not received his order.

He finally had a response saying the album was not available, and the record company offered him a $7.98 certificate to make up for $14.18 he had already paid.

In his letter to the record company, he said he would "absolutely not" accept the offer until he got his 14.18 refund, and he threatened to "take action which could prove to be embarrassing to your company."

After the attorney general's office wrote the company, in May, it was learned that the record club had filed last December a petition for an arrangement under the Bankruptcy Act, and that any record club members who have claims are unsecured creditors and should file a proof of claims forms with a bankruptcy judge.

"If proof of claim is not filed, you may not participate in any settlement which is finally made to creditors," the letter received stated.

So, this is another pitfall to which a consumer may fall heir if he or she sends a check in advance and the company goes into bankruptcy proceedings before the order is ever filled.

But buying by mail may be a most convenient way to purchase goods if you follow the following tips from the Better Business Bureau and make sure you deal with a reputable mail order firm:

—Beware of exaggerated claims for products or unrealistically low prices for merchandise.

—Carefully read catalogs, and always keep a copy of the ad or brochure you order from.

—If you are in doubt about a company, check with the Better Business Bureau, Chamber of Commerce or state or local consumer protection office before placing your order.

—Before ordering, find out if the merchandise is offered on a satisfaction guaranteed or money-back basis.

—Place your order at least four weeks before you want the merchandise. Check for a cut-off date for orders after which delivery will not be guaranteed.

—Pay by check or money order and be sure to include any shipping and handling charges. Never send cash through the mail.

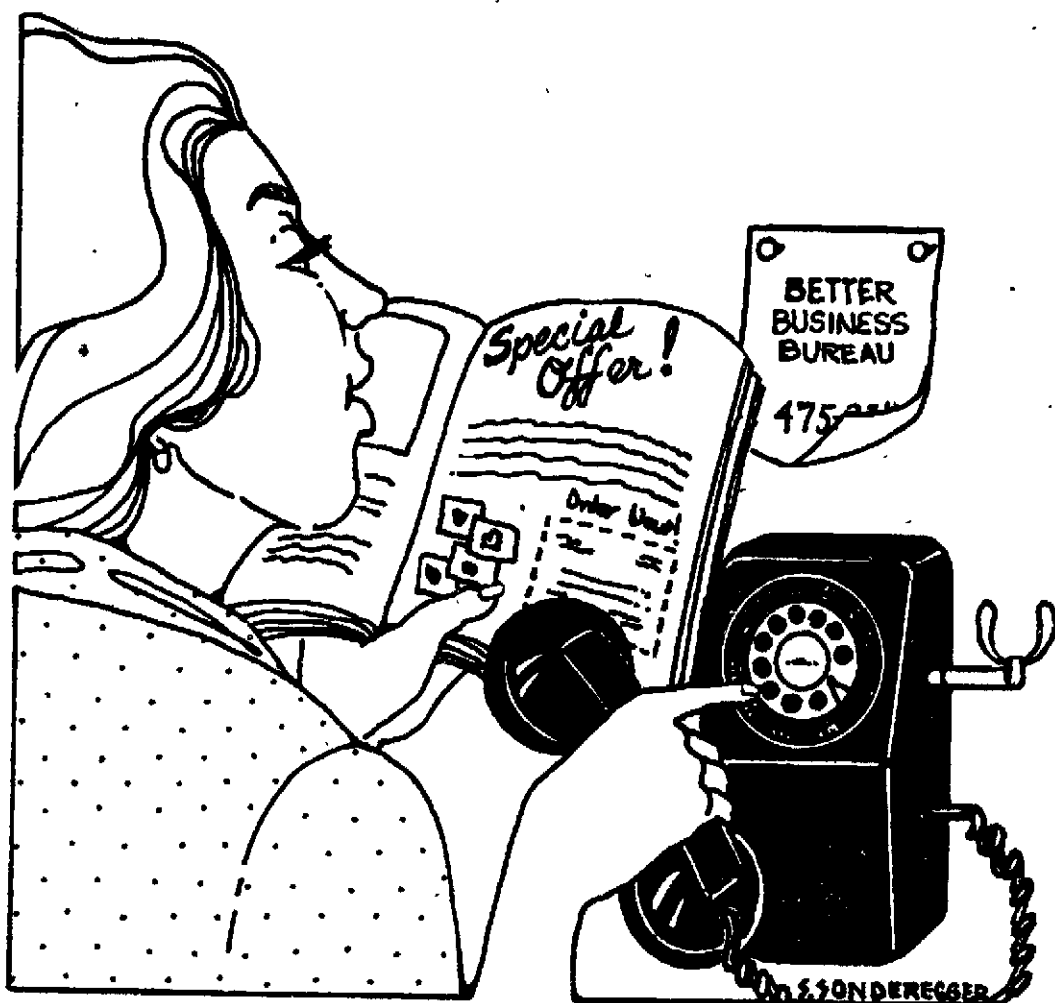

—Be sure to clearly indicate your name and address on the order, and if it is a gift, where it is to be sent.

—Keep a record of your order including the name and address of the company and the date you placed your order. Keep your cancelled checks and the number of a money order or bank check if that is how you paid.

—Check your order promptly upon receipt to make sure the item is what you ordered, that it is intact and satisfactory. Notify the company at once if it isn't.

C.O.D. May Not Be That High

Those Collect On Delivery (C.O.D.) charges could amount to very little as compared to the total cost of an item which you risk never receiving.

Although many people are reluctant to spend the extra amount for having goods sent C.O.D., a check with the local post office and United Parcel Service (UPS) revealed that the maximum C.O.D. charge is only $1.25.

C.O.D. charges by U.S. Mail vary according to the cost of the contents of the parcel for which charges are collected — from 70 cents for anything under $10 up to a maximum of $1.25 for goods costing between $200 and $300.

A postal official said that goods costing in excess of $300 cannot be sent C.O.D. unless the amount above $300 has been paid in the form of a down payment with the remainder to be C.O.D.

However, United Parcel Service has a different system. There is a flat 85-cent charge regardless of the cost which must be prepaid by the sender.

The receiver of the goods then pays the sender through the UPS delivery person. Checks must be payable to the sender.

According to Linda Henley of UPS, the only way mail order merchandise can be sent C.O.D. through her firm, is for the sender to pay the 85-cent charge and possibly pass it on to the consumer by billing him or her for it.

In sending parcels C.O.D. by both the regular mail and UPS, the C.O.D. charges are in addition to regular mailing or shipping costs.

Shown below are the C.O.D. charges for various costs of merchandise when sent by U.S. Mail:

25.01-50	.90

She Wants Abby's Green Light

DEAR ABBY: I'm nobody's fool, but this is going to sound like a foolish letter.

I'm 31, have two sons and have been divorced twice. I am a beautiful woman with a home in the country and many friends, and everybody thinks I've got the world by the tail.

They should only know how miserable I am.

I recently met a man who seems interested in me, but he's very bashful. He stops by, eats and plays with my boys, but he never stays long.

He's married but says he wishes he weren't. No children. He's a big, rugged cowboy and looks like George Montgomery — Dinah Shore's "ex."

Abby, I've dated lots of men in my life, but this is the only one I really want.

I have never messed with a married man and vowed I wouldn't, but he isn't happy, there are no children involved and I truly think he cares for me.

Should I go after him, throw my body at him, or forget it and keep daydreaming? I've never felt like this about a man with whom I've never even been intimate.

What I want from you is a yes or "go-ahead sign" to clear my conscience. I really want this man.

NAMELESS IN TEXAS

DEAR NAMELESS: If he wanted you as much as you want him, he'd do something about it. He's married and strictly off limits. With all you have going for you, you should be able to rope a nice single man.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20c) envelope.

But Forquet, having been to the wars before, thought the matter over and concluded that he could still make four spades if West had three diamonds in addition to the five spades and three hearts he had already shown up with. Accordingly, Forquet played a club to the ace and continued with the A-K-Q of diamonds, ruffing the queen after East showed out.

He then cashed the king of clubs, producing this position:

Forquet won the low heart with the queen and, expecting no trouble whatsoever, led the jack, ten or seven — because in ace of trumps. East showed out all these cases there were no more trump tricks left for West changed. What seemed like to take.

Forquet led a club and West, who seemed to have two certain trump tricks, suddenly found he could make only one of them.

West could not afford to ruff with the seven, which declarer would overruff with the eight, so instead he ruffed with the nine. Forquet found the correct response to this move when he discarded the jack of diamonds from dummy. It did not matter now whether West returned the jack, ten or seven — because in ace of trumps. East showed out all these cases there were no more trump tricks left for West changed. What seemed like to take.

Controversy Over Meat Packing Plant Splits Town

CHIPPewa FALLS, Wis. (AP) — The controversy over odors from a meat packing plant continues to cloud the economic future of Chippewa Falls. Employees are angry about the possible closing of the plant, businessmen are starting to worry and both sides in the dispute are going to court.

Residents in the fashionable West Hills section of this west central Wisconsin city of 14,000 have had long-standing complaints about the nearby Packerland Packing Co. plant.

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) lent a

Msgr. Kean Of Odell Dies At 74

Services will be held at 11 a.m. Wednesday for Msgr. John A. Kean, pastor of St. Mary's Church in Odell, who died Sunday.

Msgr. Kean, 74, was born in Dawson and studied at St. Benedict's College in Atchison, Kan., and at Kenrick Seminary in St. Louis, Mo.

He was ordained for the Lincoln Diocese in 1928 and served as pastor of the following churches: St. Joseph's, Friend; Sacred Heart, Burchard; St. John's, Table Rock; St. Leo's, Palmyra; St. Martin's, Douglas, and Sacred Heart, Shelby.

He served as pastor of St. Mary's since 1965.

Services will be held in St. Mary's Church, Dawson, with Bishop Glennon P. Flavin officiating. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

sympathetic ear to those complaints, and in July it issued an air pollution abatement order — as yet unresolved — against the Green Bay-based firm. The odors are connected with the animal slaughtering process.

Then last month the Chippewa Falls Planning Commission revoked a conditional use zoning permit granted to the company about two years ago, saying Packerland had not complied with odor control conditions imposed on it.

That brought the matter to a head, and President S. W. Frankenthal announced the company was going to pull out of Chippewa Falls and transfer its employees to plants in Green Bay and Pampa, Tex.

"We will remove the equipment in an orderly fashion, piece by piece," Frankenthal said. "And we will then destroy the buildings to render them tax-free and useless and place a sign on top of these buildings as a monument dedicated to the city of Chippewa Falls, the DNR and the industrial climate within this area."

The threat has not been taken lightly. With 400 employees, Packerland is Chippewa Falls' largest manufacturer, and there had been talk of expanding the work force by half again by next summer. As it is, unemployment has been running between 8 and 11% in Chippewa County during the past year.

The announcement was yet another potential blow to the area economy, following the elimination of 900 jobs at National Presto Industries in nearby Eau Claire and tentative plans for a 1,400-worker cutback at the Uniroyal tire plant there.

Packerland employees have reacted angrily, with some of them saying they would boycott Chippewa Falls business establishments because of the city's action. Grocer James Kowalski, president of the local Chamber of Commerce, says he has seen "a very noticeable dropoff" in the number of Packerland paychecks cashed at his Red Owl store in the past two weeks.

The planning commission's action has not affected Packerland's operation yet because the panel has no enforcement powers. But Gerald O. Thorpe, president of the First National Bank, said local real estate men are worried about the effect of the odor controversy on property values in the West Hill area, where residents are still irate.

Meanwhile, the City Council is stepping up its action against the firm. Last week it ordered the Chippewa Falls city attorney to file suit in Circuit Court, and there has been some sentiment among council members for shutting off the company's water supply.

"I don't care if it's legal or not," said Alderman Paul Eckhardt. "Let them take us to court if they feel it isn't and then we can use the same tactics they do."

Meanwhile, Packerland has filed a Circuit Court suit of its own, contesting the legality of the Planning Commission's action. The company maintains only the Department of Natural Resources has the power to close the plant because the zoning permit carried a stipulation the firm adhere to DNR air pollution control standards.

2,000 French Troops Removed From Chad

PARIS (AP) — France began airlifting 2,000 troops out of Chad on Sunday to comply with demands made by the government of the central African country in the continuing dispute over efforts to gain the release of French archeologist Françoise Claustre.

Chad, a former French colony, has vehemently criticized methods used by France to win the release of Mrs. Claustre, kidnapped by Toubou rebels in northern Chad 18 months ago. The French government finally abandoned attempts to work through the Chad government and talked directly with the rebels, delivering a ransom of some $2.2 million in money and supplies, though not arms. Rebel leader Hissen Habre then refused to release Mrs. Claustre unless he was given arms.

Possibly fearing that France might mount some kind of military maneuver, Chad demanded withdrawal of French troops, which in the past helped fight the rebels and maintained an important French staging post en route to the strategic port of Djibouti on the Red Sea.

The troops and their families were being flown back to southern France.

Chad refused Saturday to give the International Red Cross Committee permission to try to aid Mrs. Claustre.

A commentator on Chad radio said Sunday that Chad "cannot be held responsible for the current impasse." He accused France of moving "from duplicity to deceit via open aggression on our territory" and said Mrs. Claustre could only be freed "in a specifically Chadian framework" without foreign intervention.

Controversy Over Meat Packing Plant Splits Town

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis. (AP) — The controversy over odors from a meat packing plant continues to cloud the economic future of Chippewa Falls. Employees are angry about the possible closing of the plant, businessmen are starting to worry and both sides in the dispute are going to court.

Residents in the fashionable West Hills section of this west central Wisconsin city of 14,000 have had long-standing complaints about the nearby Packerland Packing Co. plant.

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) lent a sympathetic ear to those complaints, and in July it issued an air pollution abatement order — as yet unresolved — against the Green Bay-based firm. The odors are connected with the animal slaughtering process.

Then last month the Chippewa Falls Planning Commission revoked a conditional use zoning permit granted to the company about two years ago, saying Packerland had not complied with odor control conditions imposed on it.

That brought the matter to a head, and President S. W. Frankenthal announced the company was going to pull out of Chippewa Falls and transfer its employees to plants in Green Bay and Pampa, Tex.

"We will remove the equipment in an orderly fashion, piece by piece," Frankenthal said. "And we will then destroy the buildings to render them tax-free and useless and place a sign on top of these buildings as a monument dedicated to the city of Chippewa Falls, the DNR and the industrial climate within this area."

The threat has not been taken lightly. With 400 employees, Packerland is Chippewa Falls' largest manufacturer, and there had been talk of expanding the work force by half again by next summer. As it is, unemployment has been running between 8 and 11% in Chippewa County during the past year.

The announcement was yet another potential blow to the area economy, following the elimination of 900 jobs at National Presto Industries in nearby Eau Claire and tentative plans for a 1,400-worker cutback at the Uniroyal tire plant there.

Packerland employees have reacted angrily, with some of them saying they would boycott Chippewa Falls business establishments because of the city's action. Grocer James Kowalski, president of the local Chamber of Commerce, says he has seen "a very noticeable dropoff" in the number of Packerland paychecks cashed at his Red Owl store in the past two weeks.

The planning commission's action has not affected Packerland's operation yet because the panel has no enforcement powers. But Gerald O. Thorpe, president of the First National Bank, said local real estate men are worried about the effect of the odor controversy on property values in the West Hill area, where residents are still irate.

Meanwhile, the City Council is stepping up its action against the firm. Last week it ordered the Chippewa Falls city attorney to file suit in Circuit Court, and there has been some sentiment among council members for shutting off the company's water supply.

"I don't care if it's legal or not," said Alderman Paul Eckhardt. "Let them take us to court if they feel it isn't and then we can use the same tactics they do."

Meanwhile, Packerland has filed a Circuit Court suit of its own, contesting the legality of the Planning Commission's action. The company maintains only the Department of Natural Resources has the power to close the plant because the zoning permit carried a stipulation the firm adhere to DNR air pollution control standards.

Lodging, Traffic Problems Depend On Who Cornhuskers Play

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

Depending on the opponent, Cornhusker football fans may or may not have a place to stay, and, they may cause a traffic problem.

This, after five straight home games, is the general consensus of opinion of Lincoln innkeepers and members of the Lincoln Police Department traffic division.

Out of town football fans usually make reservations for lodging rather early in the week, according to one person managing the Lincoln Lodging Association phones at the Colonial Inn, 56th and Cornhusker.

The association, formed just over a year ago, is primarily concerned with finding housing for the thousands of fans who begin flocking to Lincoln early Friday evening.

Numbers Only Priority

"We don't concentrate on prices or types of rooms available, just the number," said desk clerk Ken of the association.

"There are 30 hotels and motels in town and they all cooperate in telling us when they are full. That way, when we get an inquiry, we can give the caller a list of motels who do have rooms available," he explained.

The past weeks, apparently haven't been a real problem for fans who came a little late, Ken said.

"The downtown units are usually filled up by mid-week, as are the larger places (the Holiday and airport motels). But we generally have a room someplace, even late Friday night," he said.

A check with the association last Friday night showed that some rooms were still available, as late as midnight, but confirmed one piece of bad news for fans.

Colorado Game Booked

"If you're planning to attend the Colorado game October 25, you might as well forget trying to find a room," Ken said. "That game has been booked nearly full for several weeks."

In general, it depends a lot on who's playing the Huskers and how close the opponent's home is to Lincoln. The reason for last Saturday's empties is believed to be due to the close proximity of Lawrence, Kan. to Lincoln.

The off-games, when the Big Red plays a team that isn't highly ranked, also causes a break for would-be lodgers. An example is the NU-Texas Christian game several weeks ago. The same situation which caused one of the largest number of no-shows at Memorial Stadium, was also thought to be a contributing factor in the number of vacant rooms.

The Colorado popularity? "We're sending customers as far west as York and as far north as Omaha in their search for rooms," Ken said.

State Fair Second

Only the demand for rooms during the State Fair even comes close in comparing to a Big Red Saturday, Ken noted. The state wrestling and basketball tournaments are next, but are generally easy to handle, he added.

The association was started in the early part of last year's football season by a group of motel people who apparently became tired of saying "no" to would-be customers. It was, according to Ken, "an instant success."

"Motel owners welcomed the clearing house concept of the program and the word spread quickly among fans. Newspaper ads also proved effective and the whole thing practically runs itself now," he said.

Last weekend, the Kansas football team and a close group of fans stayed at the Ramada Inn by the airport after being escorted through the state by a Kansas Highway Patrol officer and a city escort by the Lincoln Police Department.

The escort by the LPD was a sort of good-will gesture, according to officers in the traffic division of the department. Two motorcycle patrolmen met the convoy of two buses, a truck and several autos at 56th and Highway 2 and escorted them to the Ramada.

Homecoming Added Problems

Traffic isn't usually a problem on Friday night. Last weekend, however, was complicated by such homecoming festivities as the parade requiring added traffic control.

Again, the proximity of Kansas, close and to the south, made for a real influx of traffic Saturday morning from the south.

Overlapping police shifts are used to control the traffic, police, with the 2:30 p.m. shift coming to work at 11 a.m. and the shift that normally quits at 3 p.m. working until 5 p.m.

Traffic on 10th Street, flowing toward the stadium, especially in the area of Tenth and Avery, is generally the heaviest, police said. After the game, Ninth Street south bound is the most congested, while Cornhusker Highway and all routes to Omaha always run heavy.

Police agree that there's only one other thing like Nebraska football, and that's the State Fair. The biggest problem then, they say, is over 100,000 people in town on Labor Day.

Complaints Increase

An increase in complaints regarding loud parties and possible drunken drivers also are dealt with by police, but the biggest problem seems to be the traffic.

The increase of pedestrians for several hours before the game cause more problems for shop owners, especially those in the food and beverage business.

Most bars manage to round up extra chairs and have additional help on hand for before and after the game. Some convert bar games to tables with special covers during the height of the activity.

Big Red fans manage to spread their enthusiasm, and their money, as far west as Grand Island on Friday nights and Saturday mornings.

Handy Stopping Place

That town, close to Interstate 80, hosts many supper guests, because it's a convenient supper break from most starting points for after-work travelers coming to Lincoln, as well as a breakfast break for those who want an early stab at it on Saturdays.

It's an almost bumper-to-bumper situation from Grand Island to Lincoln on Friday nights and about an hour before game time Saturday. The same is true with the Omaha-Lincoln routes.

Weeks of planning by the police, Nebraska State Patrol and motel and hotel operators can only aim at easing the situation for the Big Red fans. But the fans, and the way they picture the Husker position, that makes or breaks the day.

CHAMPION PIPE SMOKER . . . Don Newsham of Ceresco.

New Father Is Best Puffer

The "second most exciting thing in four days" happened to 24-year-old Don Newsham of Ceresco Sunday afternoon as the dreams of five other Lincoln men went up in smoke.

Newsham won the first annual Lincoln Pipe Club pipe smoking contest held at Cliff's Cocktail Lounge, 1204 O. Last Thursday his wife gave birth to a baby boy.

"This has been a real experience," he grinned, after stoking the last puff out of his pipe after 71 minutes and 40 seconds to win over five other smokers who dropped out as their fire stopped along the way.

5-Year Smoker

"I've been smoking a pipe for five years . . . seriously for about two years, and the chance to compete sounded like something worth trying," he added.

Frank Fowler Third

Dennis Klimes, 600 S. 53rd, was the closest competitor to Newsham with a time of 59:58. Frank Fowler, 1635 Garfield, came in third at 53:02.

Newsham was invited to enter the contest by Ted Wright, 1826 S. 15th, founder of the pipe club and a three-time pipe smoking champion. Wright ran Sunday's contest with the help of employees of Cliff's Smoke Shop.

Each of the smokers was given 3.3 grams of jute cut burley pipe tobacco and two matches. They were given one minute to light the pipe and had to use both matches in that time. After that they were allowed to use a pipe tool to keep the tobacco burning and had to consider themselves "out" when they could puff no more.

Louis Anderson, 1625 S. 16th, was the first out at 36:20. Bill Raacke, 1002 L, was next at 41:59 and Don Taute, 816 Abel Hall, lasted 52:44 before bowing out to the top three.

Wright said the national record is two hours and six minutes held by a Minnesota man set in competition last year. Wright came in third in the international held last year by the International Pipe Smokers Association, which sanctioned Sunday's Smoke-off.

Cliff Thoen, owner of Cliff's, said the contest proved a point. "A pipe is something which can be smoked for a long time and enjoyed. Too many people smoke too fast and never really enjoy it."

All of the contestants received prizes from the smoke shop.

Ship's Crew Under Guard; One Admits Killing

West Palm Beach, Fla. (AP)—Five crewmen were held under armed guard Sunday after one of them reportedly admitted killing his captain and three officers during a mutiny aboard a Panamanian cargo ship on the high seas.

Manfred Oppermann, captain of the vessel which rescued the five crewmen after their 220-foot ship sank northeast of Cuba, said one of the five confessed to killing the four West German officers of the freighter Mimi.

Oppermann, captain of the West German ship Lalli, said one man apparently killed the officers, and the other crewmen went along with the plot. He would not identify the crewman who allegedly admitted the slayings.

The five crewmen—four Indonesians and a Filipino cook—earlier were identified as the reported confession.

"As near as I can determine, the Mimi sank," said Louis Gidel, deputy district director of the immigration service. "As for people being killed, I can't say one way or the other. Four men went down with the ship."

He said the dispute aboard the ship still was unclear to officials, "But it was not spontaneous. It apparently had been going on for some time."

Oppermann said the crew members were being held under armed guard in the Lalli's storage room.

Meanwhile, the Coast Guard suspended its two-day search for the missing officers. Spokesmen for the State Department and FBI said the agencies were investigating to determine if they had jurisdiction in the case.

"The State Department has sent messages to West Germany and Panama on this matter and is in the process of contacting Indonesia and the Philippines," said spokesman John Feeny in Washington. "We are trying to keep all parties abreast of the situation."

The crewmen, drifting in a life raft, were rescued after a Coast Guard airplane spotted the survivors and radioed the Lalli to change course and pick them up.

"The first word of a mutiny came from the high seas operator in Jacksonville," said Coast Guard spokesman Steve Fraser. He said the operator received a cryptic message from

Mayor Of Philadelphia Hurt At Refinery Blaze

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Explosions ripped storage tanks and flames shot nine stories in the air as fire raged out of control in an oil refinery along the Schuylkill River on Sunday night.

Authorities reported no serious injuries, but Mayor Frank Rizzo broke his right thigh when a fireman ran into him. Rizzo's brother, Fire Commissioner Joseph Rizzo, said the fireman and the mayor collided as they were rushing away from a gas line explosion.

The 250-pound, 6-foot-2 mayor was hospitalized in good condition and scheduled to undergo surgery Monday. The fireman was treated and released with a minor knee injury.

Three explosions ripped the Atlantic Richfield refinery after a fire broke out Sunday evening. Fire boats fought the blaze from the river and trucks raced to the scene from all over the city as nine alarms were sounded.

The ARCO refinery stretches for several miles along the Schuylkill River and refines a variety of products. Fire authorities said the blaze was centered in an area used to fuel tanker trucks.

ARCO tank trucks carried fuel out of the area and firemen wetted down storage tanks to prevent the spread of fire.

Fire Commissioner Joseph Rizzo, brother of the mayor, said between 20 and 30 pipelines, each about seven inches wide, were on fire. He said other lines were rupturing as the fire burned.

Firemen at the scene said the explosions involved storage tanks but it was not known what the tanks contained. Cause of the blaze was not known.

The fire covered about a block area midway between the Schuylkill River and the Schuylkill Expressway. A witness said the fire appeared to be spreading toward the east.

The Schuylkill Expressway, which runs next to the refinery, was closed to traffic, as were several other roadways near the scene.

Mayor Rizzo described the blast he heard as "a big fireball throwing out tremendous amounts of heat."

Two priests stood outside the gates of the refinery. One, Father James Moore of St. Joseph's College, said, "We hope we're not necessary. We're here as a precautionary measure."

Cologne, West Germany (UPI) — The West German federal railway is now offering two-bed cabins in its new sleeping cars. Hitherto, sleepers had three-bed cabins in the tourist class. The railway plans to run 16 of the new 34-bed sleeping cars by the end of this year on its trans-European express trains.

Lodging, Traffic Problems Depend On Who Cornhuskers Play

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

Depending on the opponent, Cornhusker football fans may or may not have a place to stay, and they may cause a traffic problem.

This, after five straight home games, is the general consensus of opinion of Lincoln innkeepers and members of the Lincoln Police Department traffic division.

Out of town football fans usually make reservations for lodging rather early in the week, according to one person manning the Lincoln Lodging Association phones at the Colonial Inn, 56th and Cornhusker.

The association, formed just over a year ago, is primarily concerned with finding housing for the thousands of fans who begin flocking to Lincoln early Friday evening.

Numbers Only Priority

"We don't concentrate on prices or types of rooms available, just the number," said desk clerk Ken of the association.

"There are 30 hotels and motels in town and they all cooperate in telling us when they are full. That way, when we get an inquiry, we can give the caller a list of motels who do have rooms available," he explained.

The past weeks apparently haven't been a real problem for fans who came a little late, Ken said.

"The downtown units are usually filled up by mid-week, as are the larger places (the Holiday and airport motels). But we generally have a room someplace, even late Friday night," he said.

A check with the association last Friday night showed that some rooms were still available, as late as midnight, but confirmed one piece of bad news for fans.

Colorado Game Booked

"If you're planning to attend the Colorado game October 25, you might as well forget trying to find a room," Ken said. "That game has been booked nearly full for several weeks."

In general, it depends a lot on who's playing the Huskers and how close the opponent's home is to Lincoln. The reason for last Saturday's empties is believed to be due to the close proximity of Lawrence, Kan. to Lincoln.

The off-games, when the Big Red plays a team that isn't highly ranked, also causes a break for would-be lodgers. An example is the NU-Texas Christian game several weeks ago. The same situation which caused one of the largest number of no-shows at Memorial Stadium, was also thought to be a contributing factor in the number of vacant rooms.

The Colorado popularity? "We're sending customers as far west as York and as far north as Omaha in their search for rooms," Ken said.

State Fair Second

Only the demand for rooms during the State Fair even comes close in comparing to a Big Red Saturday, Ken noted. The state wrestling and basketball tournaments are next, but are generally easy to handle, he added.

The association was started in the early part of last year's football season by a group of motel people who apparently became tired of saying "no" to would-be customers. It was, according to Ken, "an instant success."

"Motel owners welcomed the clearing house concept of the program and the word spread quickly among fans. Newspaper ads also proved effective and the whole thing practically runs itself now," he said.

Last weekend, the Kansas football team and a close group of fans stayed at the Ramada Inn

by the airport after being escorted through the state by a Kansas Highway Patrol officer and a city escort by the Lincoln Police Department.

The escort by the LPD was a sort of good-will gesture, according to officers in the traffic division of the department. Two motorcycle patrolmen met the convoy of two buses, a truck and several autos at 56th and Highway 2 and escorted them to the Ramada.

Homecoming Added Problems

Traffic isn't usually a problem on Friday night. Last weekend, however, was complicated by such homecoming festivities as the parade requiring added traffic control.

Again, the proximity of Kansas, close and to the south, made for a real influx of traffic Saturday morning from the south.

Overlapping police shifts are used to control the traffic, police, with the 2:30 p.m. shift coming to work at 11 a.m. and the shift that normally quits at 3 p.m. working until 5 p.m.

Traffic on 10th Street, flowing toward the stadium, especially in the area of Tenth and Avery, is generally the heaviest, police said. After the game, Ninth Street south bound is the most congested, while Cornhusker

Highway and all routes to Omaha always run heavy.

Police agree that there's only one other thing like Nebraska football, and that's the State Fair. The biggest problem then, they say, is over 100,000 people in town on Labor Day.

Complaints Increase

An increase in complaints regarding loud parties and possible drunken drivers also are dealt with by police, but the biggest problem seems to be the traffic.

The increase of pedestrians for several hours before the game cause some problems for shop owners, especially those in the food and beverage business.

Most bars manage to round up extra chairs and have additional help on hand before and after the game. Some convert bar games to tables with special covers during the height of the activity.

Big Red fans manage to spread their enthusiasm, and their money, as far west as Grand Island on Friday nights and Saturday mornings.

Handy Stopping Place

That town, close to Interstate 80, hosts many supper guests, because it's a convenient stop break from most starting points for after-work travelers coming to Lincoln, as well as a breakfast break for those who want an early stab at it on Saturdays.

It's an almost bumper-to-bumper situation from Grand Island to Lincoln on Friday nights and about an hour before game time Saturday. The same is true with the Omaha-Lincoln routes.

Weeks of planning by the police, Nebraska State Patrol and motel and hotel operators can only aim at easing the situation for the Big Red fans. But the fans, and the way they picture the Husker opposition, that makes or breaks the day.

"They admit they killed the officers," Oppermann said. "These people will stay on board until we get (jurisdictional) information from immigration officials."

A spokesman for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service refused comment about

The report, cut off in mid-transmission said in part: "There are men fighting. The captain is dead. Please send help . . . SOS."

The Mimi, with 1.5 million pounds of fertilizer aboard, sank Saturday while enroute from Tampa to Georgetown, Guyana. It was owned by Intercontinental Properties Management of Panama City. Its officers were Capt. Lothar Eckard, chief engineer Bernd Hesse, second engineer Host Hesse and chief mate Manfred Schmidt.

Power Cut Off By Falling Limb

A falling tree limb knocked down a 12,500-volt power line Sunday afternoon and caused a 65-minute power outage in northeast Lincoln, a Lincoln Electric spokesman said.

He said the outage was in an area from 64th to 70th Sts., Adams to Fremont.

The LES spokesman said the gusty winds, which apparently caused the limb to fall, also caused a number of minor outages Sunday in other locations.

Concepcion's Switch Helps Reds Even World Series

BOSTON (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds, the gears of their "Big Red Machine" stripped by Bill Lee for eight innings, shifted into high speed in the ninth inning Sunday when Dave Concepcion switched from govt to hero and triggered a two-run rally that produced a 3-2 triumph over the Boston Red Sox to even the World Series at one game apiece.

Concepcion, whose sixth-inning error had set up the go-ahead run for Boston, singled home the tying run, then stole second and scored the winning run on Ken Griffey's two-out double as the Reds rallied to win in their last at bat for the 25th time this season.

The best-of-seven series now shifts to Cincinnati for the third game Tuesday night. The next three games will all be played at Riverfront Stadium where the Reds posted a record 64 victories this year.

"We came in here expecting to win two games. We always come in expecting to win," said Reds' second baseman Joe Morgan. "I'm happy with the split, considering we lost the first game. But I'd rather have the sweep. I think we can go back to Cincinnati and win three straight, but those Red Sox have a scrappy team."

Held to only four hits by Lee over the first eight innings and once again looking nothing like the club that had won 108 regular season games, the Reds suddenly broke loose against reliever Dick Drago with two out in the ninth after Johnny Bench had finished Lee with a leadoff double.

Drago, the Red Sox' top reliever down the stretch, looked almost as fearsome as Lee when he retired the first two batters easily. But, Concepcion bounced a grounder up the middle and beat out a hit when second baseman Denny Doyle, who fielded the ball over second, was unable to make a throw.

Bench, who had moved to third on Tony Perez' infield grounder, scored on the play and a moment later Concepcion put himself into scoring position by executing the Reds' first steal of the Series. The Reds had stolen a perfect 11-for-11 against Pittsburgh in the National League playoffs, but had been caught twice by the powerful arm of catcher Carlton Fisk in their first two attempts of the Series.

Concepcion's steal set the stage for Griffey and the Reds' outfielder, who had failed to hit the ball out of the infield in three tries against Lee, lined a two-strike pitch into the left-center field alley for a double to score Concepcion.

"I knew Drago was a fastball pitcher," said Griffey. "I was looking for a fastball and that's what I hit."

Prior to their ninth inning rally the Reds had done very little offensively for the second day in a row. Blanked by righthander Luis Tiant on Saturday, the Reds posed only one serious threat to Lee over the first eight innings. That came in the fourth inning when Morgan walked, moved to third as Bench snapped an 0-for-18 post-season slump with a single to right and scored when Perez bounced into a forceout.

The Red Sox didn't do very well at the plate either, managing only seven hits off four pitchers, but the chilly 54 degree temperatures and intermittent rain, which forced a 27-minute delay in the middle of the seventh inning, were certainly contributing factors to the low offensive output.

Still, the way Lee was pitching it didn't appear the Red Sox would need very much offense. They got a break in the sixth inning when Concepcion, usually a sure-handed fielder, bobbled Fisk's grounder for an error after Carl Yastrzemski had singled with one out. They then managed to push across the tie-breaking run on a two-out single by Rico Petrocelli.

The Red Sox, however, probably blew the game in the first two innings when some careless base running took them out of scoring opportunities.

Cecil Cooper committed a baserunning blunder in the first inning when he was thrown out at the plate to complete a double play after hesitating in his break toward home. Cooper had opened the inning with a double when his line drive to left was misplayed by George Foster. He moved to third on Doyle's infield hit and Yastrzemski followed with a onehopper to pitcher Jack Billingham, who conceded the run and threw to second to start a double play.

Concepcion made the forceout at second but out of the corner of his eye noticed that Cooper had not broken for the plate.

Concepcion quickly fired to Bench and Cooper was tagged out in a rundown. Yastrzemski was able to get to second on the play and scored when Fisk dropped a single into short right.

The Red Sox' biggest mistake came in the second inning, however, when Dwight Evans was picked off second base by Bench. With Lee batting and runners on first and second, Bench saw Evans wandering too far off base and threw to Concepcion who then fired to third baseman Pete Rose to nail Evans.

"The ball was right down the middle and I thought he (Lee) would get a piece of it," said

Evans. "But he didn't. I thought he tipped it and the next thing I know the ball is halfway to second base and I was too far out."

Chiefs Stun Raiders With 42-10 Upset

By United Press International
The Kansas City Chiefs used a 48-yard pass to rookie Walter White and pair of interceptions by Kerry Reardon and Emmitt Thomas as a springboard to three touchdowns in three minutes during the first quarter Sunday and stunned the previously unbeaten Oakland Raiders, 42-10.

It was the Chiefs' first victory of the season and the first under new Coach Paul Wiggins. The win also ended an eight-game losing streak at home.

White opened the scoring blitz when he hauled in a 48-yard touchdown pass from Mike Livingston with 4:08 left in the first quarter.

Then Reardon picked off a Ken Stabler pass at the Oakland 33 and raced to the Raiders' five before Stabler knocked him out of bounds. Woody Green rambled the final five yards for the TD.

Two plays later, Thomas intercepted another Stabler pass and returned it 36 yards to the Oakland 33.

Livingston hit veteran tight end Billy Masters with a 32-yard pass on first down. From the one, Ed Podolak fumbled but the loose ball popped back into Livingston's hands and he dove over the top for the score, with 1:09 remaining in the first quarter.

In other NFL games it was Los Angeles 13 San Diego 10 in sudden death, Pittsburgh 20 Denver 9, Miami 24 Philadelphia 16, Minnesota 29 New York Jets 21, Dallas 13 New York Giants 7, Cincinnati 27 New England 10, Detroit 27 Chicago 7, Buffalo 38 Baltimore 31, Houston 40 Cleveland 10, Atlanta 17 San Francisco 3, New Orleans 20 Green Bay 19.

St. Louis meets Washington Monday night.

Veteran Tom Dempsey kicked a 22-yard field goal with 5:33 remaining in overtime to give the heavily favored Rams their narrow victory over stubborn San Diego. Dempsey's second field goal of the game came after an 82-yard drive, featuring a key third-down pass from James Harris to tight end Bob Klein for 29 yards, on a fourth-and-one situation on the Chargers' six.

Terry Bradshaw threw two touchdowns to lead Pittsburgh to their first regular season victory ever over Denver. Bradshaw needed only 29 yards passing to become the third Steeler quarterback to go past the 8,000 yard mark and he picked that up with his first pass of the game as Lynn Swann leaped between two Bronco defenders at the goal line for a 43-yard touchdown. Bradshaw, who finished the day with 16 completions on 26 attempts for 191 yards, joined Bobby Layne and Jimmy Finks as the only Steeler quarterbacks to pass for more than 8,000 yards.

Bob Griese hit Nat Moore for one second half touchdown and former Eagle Norm Bulaich ran up the middle for another to give Miami its win over Philadelphia. After a see-saw first half which ended with the Dolphins ahead 10-9, Griese and the Dolphin offense took charge with two scoring drives, one capped by Griese's 13-yarder to Moore and the other by Bulaich's 7-yard run.

Joe Blahak blocked a Greg Gantt punt out of the end zone for a safety midway through the final quarter and Chuck Foreman scored his third touchdown of the game minutes later to rally the unbeaten Vikings past the Jets. Trailing 21-20, the Vikings grabbed a one-point lead on the safety following the blocked punt. After the Jets' free kick from their own 20-yard line, Tarkenton marched the Vikings for the final score with Foreman going over from the five.

Roger Staubach hit Jean Fugett with a four-yard touchdown pass four plays after a Mark Washington interception to give the Cowboys their triumph over New York, spoiling the Giants' return to New York City after a two-year absence. Washington picked off a Craig Morton pass at the New York 40 and returned it 23 yards to the 17, setting up the Cowboys' lone touchdown. Staubach then found Fugett all alone in the left corner of the end zone with 11:37 remaining in the game to keep the Cowboys unbeaten with a 4-0 mark.

The Cincinnati Bengals raced to their fourth straight victory by scoring two touchdowns within 51 seconds late in the third quarter en route to their triumph over the winless New England Patriots. It is Cincinnati's best start ever Ken Anderson, the National Football League's leading passer, completed 16 of 31 aeriels for 265 yards.

Injuries Place 'Pokes' Burk Into QB Spot

By DAVE SITTLER

Columbia Mo. — Three weeks ago, Oklahoma State's Scott Burk was a cornerback who had dreams of being a quarterback. In that short time span, Burk's dreams have come true, thanks to a rash of injuries which have given Cowboy coach Jim Stanley a batch of nightmares.

Burk's defense to offense switch was necessitated when starting OSU quarterback, Charlie Weatherbie, sustained a broken collarbone against North Texas State.

The 6-2, 186-pound Burk's status as the "Pokes" reserve signal caller was short lived. One game and six plays to be exact.

Main Man

Serving as the backup to Jimmy Derrick against Texas Tech, Burk suddenly became the Cowboys' main man last Saturday in the midst of OSU's humiliating 41-14 whipping here against Missouri.

On the sixth play against the Tigers, Derrick swung around left end on a keeper where he was met solidly by Missouri defensive end Bob McRoberts. Derrick never rose from the play. He was carried off the field at Farout Stadium with a severely damaged right knee.

Enter Mr. Burk, the daydreamer who was rudely snapped back to reality by a rugged Missouri defense.

Still a bit dazed by the dramatic turn of events, Burk sat in the Cowboy lockerroom after the contest reflecting on the past and looking ahead to this Saturday's game against Nebraska in Stillwater.

"I did a lot of stupid things today," Burk said. "I don't know why, I didn't feel that much pressure. I was a little nervous because I wanted to play well."

Burk's statistics against Missouri were not overwhelming. He hit on only 2 of 13 passes for 79 yards and rushed for 34 yards on 12 carries.

Big Bomb

But one of his passes resulted in a 72-yard second quarter bomb to split end Gerald Bain for the Cowboys' first touchdown.

It should be pointed out, that neither the quarterback situation nor injuries are foreign to Burk.

Weatherbie's backup last year as a freshman, Burk suffered a shoulder separation in OSU's second game against Texas Tech.

He came back to start the last two games for the 'Pokes, including the 16-6 Fiesta Bowl win over Brigham Young University. Oklahoma State's coaching staff decided to make Burk a defensive back this fall when the quarterback situation appeared secure with Weatherbie and Derrick.

Security Gone

Thanks to the injuries, the security is gone, and Burk stands alone to shoulder the offensive load for the Cowboys. "I don't know if the team is snake bit with injuries or not," Burk said. "But it's beginning to look that way. We just have to keep trying to shake it off and comeback."

Because of his injury last year, Burk didn't play against Nebraska as the Huskers held on to win 7-3 in Lincoln.

"I had to sit back home in Stillwater and listen to the game on the radio," Burk recalled.

Although he's never faced the Cornhuskers, Burk indicated he has respect for the Nebraska program.

"I know Nebraska executes a heck of a lot better on defense than Missouri did today," he said. "Nebraska always plays tough defense."

Tough Defense

"It will be a lot harder to run on them (Nebraska) than it was against Missouri."

Burk admitted the Cowboys have a long week of hard work ahead as they prepare for Saturday's invasion by the Cornhuskers.

"We are really going to be up for the game," Burk said. "We're going to work extremely hard this week, and we've always been the type of team that responds well to hard work."

Cowboy Notes . . . Noting that Burk is the only quarterback on the roster, Stanley said a Oklahoma State sports information director Pat Quinn jested that, "if Burk gets hurt I think we should seriously consider going to the single wing."

OSU Scout Realizes 'Woes'

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

When Hal Guttry discusses the Oklahoma State quarterback situation, he talks from experience.

"They both (Jimmy Derrick and Scott Burk) are good quarterbacks. They have excellent speed and are capable passers," said Guttry, who scouted Nebraska in a 16-0 win over Kansas Saturday at Memorial Stadium.

Guttry, an OSU graduate assistant who is helping the Cowboy defensive secondary coaches, was a backup quarterback for the Cowboys from 1972 until last spring.

"I suffered six concussions . . . that's why I'm not playing anymore. It was getting too dangerous to play," he added.

Another Cowboy who must agree that quarterback is a hazardous occupation is OSU's Charlie Weatherbie. Weatherbie, a junior from Fort Scott, Kan., broke his collarbone in a 61-7 romp two weeks ago over North Texas State.

New QBs

That thrust Derrick, a junior who saw action in all OSU games last season; and Burk, who started OSU's last two games last year, into the quarterbacking picture.

"Weatherbie may possibly play against Nebraska," Guttry explained. "He was a respected leader and had a lot of confidence. He's played more than the other two, but I'm sure Derrick and Burk will get better as they gain some experience."

Derrick directed head coach Jim Stanley's attack on Oct. 4 in a 17-16 win over Texas Tech. But on the sixth play in Saturday's 41-14 loss to Missouri, he sustained a severely damaged right knee.

That brought Burk into the game and connected on a 72-yard touchdown pass to split end Gerald Bain in one of the few Cowboy successes.

Nebraska must travel to Stillwater Saturday to meet the Cowboys, who won four contests before losing to Missouri. It will be NU's first road game this season. Those factors obviously must help OSU.

"Sure, it'll help us," Guttry noted. "We've had great fans at home. I'm sure it'll be a sellout. This will be one of our three biggest games at home this year. I think our biggest games will be Nebraska, Oklahoma and Arkansas (OSU stopped the Razorbacks 20-13)."

While OSU relies on the wishbone and slot-I offensive alignments, Guttry said Stanley employs the slot-I more.

Solid Game

"Both offenses have been effective," he said. "But for us to beat Nebraska, it'll take an extremely solid football game. We have to defend their offense with few mistakes. They (Nebraska) use a lot of pitch sweeps so we'll need a strong defense."

"I don't really know what kind of offensive OSU will use. But after looking at the films, I'm sure the coaches will have a game plan, a counter plan and other plans."

Guttry was most predictable in praising Nebraska.

"Their (NU) defense's got to be strong. They shutout a Big Eight team and anytime you do that, you've got to be playing great defense," he noted. "I think Wonder Monds (monster) showed excellent support on the veer option plays. Curtis Craig (wingback) does a good job on the Z reverse."

"The offensive line blocked well and Nebraska had an effective game plan," he explained. "Both quarterbacks (Terry Luck and Vince Ferragamo) led the team well. Davis (fullback Tony) and Anthony (I-back Monte) are strong, dependable runners."

Guttry admitted his scouting chores at Nebraska were his first scout responsibilities ever.

"It was an experience," he said. "It's fun. I'll do whatever they want me to do, but I wouldn't mind doing it every week. It's a chance to see some good football each week in the Big Eight."

Averages Take Tumble, Favorites Continue Winning Ways

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

It was a bad college football weekend for the law of averages.

Second-ranked Oklahoma made it five in a row over fifth-ranked Texas and 29 in a row over all comers, winning 24-17 on fullback Horace Ivory's tie-breaking 33-yard dash in the closing minutes.

Eighth-ranked Michigan also got a tie-breaking fourth-quarter touchdown on Gordon Bell's 18-yard run and knocked off Michigan State for the sixth straight year—16-6. The losers had been tied for 15th in the ratings with Notre Dame.

And ninth-ranked Penn State stretched its jinx over No. 10 West Virginia to 17 consecutive games—19-0-1 over the last two decades—by recovering five fumbles in a surprisingly easy 39-0 rout.

Elsewhere, it was pretty much the same story.

Ohio State, No. 1 in the latest Associated Press poll, ran its winning streak over winless Iowa to 11 in a row with a 49-0 drubbing as Pete Johnson, the nation's leading scorer, tallied his 12th, 13th and 14th touchdowns on short plunges and Archie Griffin rushed for 120 yards, his 26th consecutive 100-yard regular-season game.

Ricky Bell rambled for 217 yards, his third 300-yard performance of the year, in leading No. 3 Southern California to its ninth in a row over Washington State and an overwhelming 32-4-4 series lead, by a 29-10 score. The victory also extended the Trojans' record Pacific-8 Conference unbeaten string to 27 games.

Mike Coyle kicked three field goals and Terry Luck threw a 26-yard scoring pass to Brad Jenkins as No. 4 Nebraska downed Kansas 16-0 for its seventh straight triumph over the Jayhawks.

No. 6 Texas A&M and No. 7 Alabama made it two in a row over respective opponents . . . with one big difference. The Texas Aggies pulled away from a one-point halftime lead and trimmed Texas Tech 38-9—Tech had won six in a row from 1968-73—as Bubba Bean carried eight times for 180 yards and scored on runs of 47 and 94 yards.

Meanwhile Alabama, whose only previous confrontation with Washington was a 20-19 squeaker in the 1956 Rose Bowl, erupted for three first-period touchdowns on Richard Todd's eight-yard run, Willie Shelby's 81-yard punt return and Johnny Davis' 31-yard gallop and crushed the Huskies 52-0.

Besides Texas, West Virginia and Michigan State, the only other member of the AP Top Twenty to stumble was 14th-ranked Oklahoma State, which bowed to No. 12 Missouri as the winners' Steve Pisarkiewicz completed 20 of 27 passes for 371 yards and touchdown tosses of 32 and 75 yards to Henry Marshall.

Elsewhere, No. 11 Arizona State edged New Mexico 18-10; Ted Burgmeier raced 80 yards after catching a short pass with one minute left, capping a three-touchdown rally in the final period that enabled Notre Dame to escape with a 21-14 scare over North Carolina; No. 17 Arizona blanked Texas-El Paso 36-0 to remain the only major team that hasn't allowed a touchdown this season.

No. 18 Florida's Jimmy DuBoise gained 80 of his 160 yards on the game's first play and the Gators went on to defeat Vanderbilt 35-0; Mike Gayles scored on 11 and one-yard runs in the final period as No. 19 Tennessee turned back Louisiana State 24-10 and No. 30 Miami of Ohio used a safety and Sherman Smith's 30-yard touchdown pass to Mike Rhodes to beat Dayton 10-0.

Michigan and Michigan State also battled on even terms—two field goals and three lost fumbles for each side—until Bell's tie-breaking run, followed by Bob Wood's third field goal.

The Mountaineers managed only 54 yards on the ground while State's Woody Fitchel more than doubled that by gaining 122 and scoring a touchdown on an eight-yard run.

In other noteworthy games, Pitt blasted Temple 55-6, Navy held off Syracuse 10-6 for its fourth triumph in five starts, Auburn shaded Kentucky 15-9 for its long-overdue first victory, Maryland whipped North Carolina State 37-22 in a key Atlantic Coast Conference clash and UCLA emerged as Southern Cal's likely challenger for Pac-8 honors with a 31-21 victory over Stanford.

In two wild contests, Lenoir Rhyne amassed an amazing 914 yards' total offense—837 on 68 rushes, 246 by Scott Crawford—and swamped Davidson 69-14 while West Virginia State's Mike Flannery came off the bench in the second half with his team trailing 42-13 and threw seven touchdown passes in a 54-54 three-overtime tie with West Liberty.

It was believed to be the highest scoring deadlock in history.

In the West Virginia Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, each team gets the ball at the own 30-yard line once in each overtime session.

Lenoir Rhyne's total offense and rushing yardage surpassed the listed NCAA records—but the school is not an NCAA member and the marks will not go into the NCAA record books.

Concepcion's Switch Helps Reds Even World Series

BOSTON (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds, the gears of their "Big Red Machine" stripped by Bill Lee for eight innings, shifted into high speed in the ninth inning Sunday when Dave Concepcion switched from goat to hero and triggered a two-run rally that produced a 3-2 triumph over the Boston Red Sox to even the World Series at one game apiece.

Concepcion, whose sixth-inning error had set up the go-ahead run for Boston, singled home the tying run, then stole second and scored the winning run on Ken Griffey's two-out double as the Reds rallied to win in their last at bat for the 25th time this season.

The best-of-seven series now shifts to Cincinnati for the third game Tuesday night. The next three games will all be played at Riverfront Stadium where the Reds posted a record 64 victories this year.

"We came in here expecting to win two games. We always come in expecting to win," said Reds' second baseman Joe Morgan. "I'm happy with the split, considering we lost the first game. But I'd rather have the sweep. I think we can go back to Cincinnati and win three straight, but those Red Sox have a scrappy team."

Held to only four hits by Lee over the first eight innings and once again looking nothing like the club that had won 108 regular season games, the Reds suddenly broke loose against reliever Dick Drago with two out in the ninth after Johnny Bench had finished Lee with a leadoff double.

Drago, the Red Sox' top reliever down the stretch, looked almost as fearsome as Lee when he retired the first two batters easily. But, Concepcion bounced a grounder up the middle and beat out a hit when second baseman Denny Doyle, who fielded the ball over second, was unable to make a throw.

Bench, who had moved to third on Tony Perez' infield grounder, scored on the play and a moment later Concepcion put himself into scoring position by executing the Reds' first steal of the Series. The Reds had stolen a perfect 11-for-11 against Pittsburgh in the National League playoffs, but had been caught twice by the powerful arm of catcher Carlton Fisk in their first two attempts of the Series.

Concepcion's steal set the stage for Griffey and the Reds' outfielder, who had failed to hit the ball out of the infield in three tries against Lee, lined a two-strike pitch into the leftcenter field alley for a double to score Concepcion.

"I knew Drago was a fastball pitcher," said Griffey. "I was looking for a fastball and that's what I hit."

Prior to their ninth inning rally the Reds had done very little offensively for the second day in a row. Blanked by righthander Luis Tiant on Saturday, the Reds posed only one serious threat to Lee over the first eight innings. That came in the fourth inning when Morgan walked, moved to third as Bench snapped an 0-for-18 post-season slump with a single to right and scored when Perez bounced into a forceout.

The Red Sox didn't do very well at the plate either, managing only seven hits off four pitchers, but the chilly 54 degree temperatures and intermittent rain, which forced a 27-minute delay in the middle of the seventh inning, were certainly contributing factors to the low offensive output.

Still, the way Lee was pitching it didn't appear the Red Sox would need very much offense. They got a break in the sixth inning when Concepcion, usually a sure-handed fielder, bobbled Fisk's grounder for an error after Carl Yastrzemski had singled with one out. They then managed to push across the tie-breaking run on a two-out single by Rico Petrocelli.

The Red Sox, however, probably blew the game in the first two innings when some careless base running took them out of scoring opportunities.

Cecil Cooper committed a baserunning blunder in the first inning when he was thrown out at the plate to complete a double play after hesitating in his break toward home. Cooper had opened the inning with a double when his line drive to left was misplayed by George Foster. He moved to third on Doyle's infield hit and Yastrzemski followed with a onehopper to pitcher Jack Billingham, who conceded the run and threw to second to start a double play.

Concepcion made the forceout at second but out of the corner of his eye noticed that Cooper had not broken for the plate.

Concepcion quickly fired to Bench and Cooper was tagged out in a rundown. Yastrzemski was able to get to second on the play and scored when Fisk dropped a single into short right.

The Red Sox' biggest mistake came in the second inning, however, when Dwight Evans was picked off second base by Bench. With Lee batting and runners on first and second, Bench saw Evans wandering too far off base and threw to Concepcion who then fired to third baseman Pete Rose to nail Evans.

"The ball was right down the middle and I thought he (Lee) would get a piece of it," said

Evans. "But he didn't. I thought he tipped it and the next thing I know the ball is halfway to second base and I was too far out."

Emanuel's FG Lifts Chadron

By KEN HAMBLETON
State College Writer

Chadron State's Chad Emanuel hasn't kicked many field goals, but his last three have helped Chadron pull ahead in the closing seconds of three important games.

Emanuel, who kicked a 41-yarder with 48 seconds left in a 11-10 win over Colorado School of Mines last week, repeated the feat with another 41-yard kick in the fourth quarter to help the Eagles edge powerful Wayne State, 3-0 in a Nebraska College Conference game Saturday before a home town crowd.

"I really don't think about the pressure," said Emanuel, a 5-9, 220-pound offensive guard. "There isn't much time to think about kicking it because I'm in on every offensive play at guard and I'm thinking about my blocking assignments, until Coach Adams (Sparky) sends in the field goal unit."

Emanuel explained that last year his assignment as the field goal specialist was tougher. "I wasn't playing much except for kicking, so any time we got inside the other team's 40-yard line I started worrying about kicking. But now I don't have time to fret."

Emanuel, a sophomore, had his biggest thrill as a kicker last year, when, as a 17-year-old freshman, he booted a 49-yard field goal with 17 seconds left to give Chadron a 10-7 win over Doane.

"It has to be my biggest thrill because it was the first field goal I ever kicked," Emanuel said. "In high school (Dodge) I tried three field goals, but two were blocked and the other was wide."

Another reason Chad is happy with his last minute kicks is that it means he's the best kicker in the Emanuel family.

Brothers Gene, who graduated from Chadron last year, and Kevin a starting fullback on this year's Eagles team, were also kickers. "I think I can finally say I'm the best in the family," Chad said. "But my younger brother Joe, a senior at Dodge High, just set a school record two weeks ago kicking a 33-yarder for the high school team."

The kicking game is very important to every team but the Eagles have to rely on it more than others said coach Adams. "We've lost our top two quarterbacks, John Burns with a shoulder separation two weeks ago and then Jackie Gutierrez with a broken hand in practice last week," Adams said. "So now we have a freshman, Brad Fultz, in there and he's going to take some time to develop."

"Our other big plus in kicking is punter Duane Fritz. He's kicked 49 punts for this year and has averaged 43 yards a kick," Adams said. "But his big game was against Wayne where he kicked eight times and averaged 51 yards a punt and Wayne had a total of five yards on the returns."

Other Games
One big surprise over the weekend was the sudden blossoming of the Nebraska Wesleyan offense.

The Plainsmen rolled up 510 total yards, 261 rushing, while collecting 29 first downs against a tough Dana Viking defense, in Wesleyan's best offensive shows of the season.

The standouts in the NWU offensive stampede were quarterback Dan Klaus hitting 15 of 28 passes for 240 yards, including touchdown passes of 14 and 40 yards to end Bob Blake.

Fullback Paul Cramer gained 100 yards and two touchdowns while halfback Byron Stallworth accounted for 135 yards and a TD, in the 41-35 NIAC win.

Tips Aid Griffey

BOSTON (AP) — Ken Griffey listened to a tip from two ex-American Leaguers and couldn't believe his eyes when Boston reliever Dick Drago delivered a two-out pitch.

"All I remember is seeing that ball swelling up, getting bigger as it came. I was guessing fast ball and I got it," said Griffey, the Cincinnati Reds' fleet outfielder whose ninth-inning double provided the Reds with the winning run in a 3-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox Sunday.

"Merv Rettenmund and Terry Crowley told me Drago was mostly a fast ball pitcher," said Griffey. "It was the biggest hit of my life," added the 25-year-old right fielder, who grew up in Donora, Pa., home town of Hall of Famer Stan Musial.

"Those are the kind of pitches you better take a good cut at because you're not going to see very many of them," he went on. "I was expecting a fast ball and I was geared for it."

Moments earlier, shortstop Dave Concepcion, who appeared destined to be the goat due to a crucial error, singled up the middle to score Johnny Bench, who triggered the last-ditch rally with a leadoff double.

"I wasn't even thinking about the error," said Concepcion. "But I didn't want to be the last out again. Yesterday, Tiant got me for the last out. Today, I said 'no way,'" said the slender Venezuelan. "As soon as I saw it go over the mound I knew Johnny would score."

Concepcion then stole second to set up the game-winning blow by Griffey.

"This really revs us up," said Reds' captain Pete Rose. "Now we go back to the pit," he said, referring to Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium where the Reds were nearly invincible during the regular season with a record-setting 64-17 home mark.

"The way we play in Cincinnati, they got to be in trouble," said Concepcion.

Manager Sparky Anderson said he gave the club a little pep talk early in the game when the Reds appeared tense.

"We were too geared and I told them to low-key it. We were putting too much emphasis on the World Series. I told them to forget about the glamor and get down to baseball," said Anderson.

"The Cincinnati team you saw Saturday was make-believe. You'll see the real Reds come Tuesday night," he promised.

over, he said he did not want to "embarrass" a hitter like Perez by asking him to bunt.

Commenting on that, Bench said "Sparky doesn't have the greatest fluency with the English language, so when he says 'embarrass,' what he really is talking about is respect. He respects Tony too much to ask him to bunt, but I wouldn't be embarrassed about bunting."

According to Bench, the Reds' manager "gets nine million letters a year saying 'why don't you bunt?' and as long as he gets letters like that, he ain't gonna bunt. I'm not proud, though, I will."

Anderson said he would not have criticized Bench had he gone ahead and bunted against Lee in the ninth, but he would have asked him what made him do it.

Reds Say Rain Helped Red Sox

BOSTON (UPI) — Joe Morgan said the rain made him feel like he was "running through the mud in tennis shoes."

The steady rain that fell on the natural turf at Fenway Park Sunday helped to stifle the Cincinnati Reds' running attack even though the deciding run in their 3-2 win over the Boston Red Sox was set up by Dave Concepcion's stolen base. Even that could have been prevented by a good throw, said Morgan.

And Concepcion's difficulties with a sixth-inning grounder came when he repositioned himself because of the slow infield grass. The error nearly cost the Reds the ballgame, since it put runners on first and second and Rico Petrocelli followed with a tie-breaking single scoring Carl Yastrzemski.

"We won't have that problem in Cincinnati," said Morgan, who was gunned down trying to steal in the sixth. "When it rains there, the field dries and the footing is not so bad. It was terrible out there today. You ever run in the mud with tennis shoes on? That's what it was like today."

Morgan blamed the mud for his failure to steal, but gave catcher Carlton Fisk credit for a good throw.

"I had the jump," he said, "but I felt like I had mud in my spikes and that it would take me forever to get down there. But Fisk made a good throw besides all that."

The rain would have negated Concepcion's stolen base if Fisk's throw was better, said Morgan.

"Sure, Dave had a good jump, but a good throw would have nailed him," he said. "Just remember, it was that much worse in the ninth than it was in

Drago Offers No Excuses

BOSTON (AP) — "Sometimes you do, sometimes you don't—that's the life of a relief pitcher."

That was reliever Dick Drago's initial comment as the losing pitcher Sunday after the Cincinnati Reds rallied in the ninth inning for two runs and a 3-2 decision over the Boston Red Sox that ended the World Series at one game apiece.

"I made good pitches. I did the job I wanted to do, only things didn't work out for me," Drago said.

Summoned from the bullpen after Johnny Bench led off the Cincinnati ninth with an opposite-field double to right against starter Bill Lee, Drago retired the first two batters he faced without any difficulty. However, Bench took third with one out on Tony Perez' grounder.

Then came what most people in the Boston clubhouse thought was the key to the Reds' victory.

On a 1-1 pitch, Dave Concepcion hit a slow, twisting grounder back through the middle. Second baseman Denny Doyle ran the ball down behind the bag but didn't have a play as Bench scored and Concepcion reached first on the infield single.

Concepcion then stole second and scored the winning run when Ken Griffey lined a 1-2 pitch into left-center for a double.

"I made the pitch I wanted to Concepcion," Drago said. "It was low and inside. He just hit the ball where somebody wasn't. Sure I'm disappointed, but what can you do? I'll just come back and be ready if I'm needed in the third game in Cincinnati Tuesday night."

"I didn't have a chance on that ball hit by Concepcion," Doyle said. "The ball was hit too slowly and I had too far to go."

"The man (Concepcion) is much too fast to get a ball hit like that," Boston Manager Darrell Johnson said. "It's a darn shame. Bill Lee was outstanding for eight innings. Then Drago came in and threw the heck out of the ball."

"We can't let this disturb us. After two games, the Series is tied. We still have to win three more."

Braxton Helps Bills

passes and the Lions' defense dominated Chicago as Detroit whipped the Bears. Munson drilled touchdown passes of 11, 14 and 12 yards to help the Lions win their third game in four contests. Charlie Sanders, Ray Jarvis and Jon Stagers were on the receiving end of the touchdowns. The Bears are 1-3.

Fullback Jim Braxton pulled his way into the end zone three times to carry the Bills past Baltimore. Braxton, who had accumulated 243 yards in the first three games of the season, gained only 13 yards on nine carries as a determined Colt defense forced Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson to go to the air. Ferguson passed for 253 yards and two touchdowns. O.J. Simpson rushed for 159 yards to boost his four-game total to 697 yards.

Dan Pastorini threw three touchdown passes to Mack Alston and Billy Johnson scored on a dazzling 81-yard kickoff return to lead Houston over the Browns. Pastorini, who hit 12 of 20 passes for 124 yards, had scoring passes of six and five yards to Alston in the second quarter, giving the Oilers a 20-10 lead at the half.

Rookie quarterback Steve Bartkowski, playing before the home fans for the first time as a pro, spearheaded the underdog Atlanta Falcons to all their points before leaving with an elbow injury late in the third quarter but his effort proved enough over the mistake-plagued 49ers.

Rich Szaro, playing his first game in the NFL, kicked a 20-yard field goal with 22 seconds left to give the Saints their victory over Green Bay for New Orleans' first victory of the season.

The Saints spotted Green Bay 16 points, including two Packer touchdowns in the first 1:05 of play, then came from behind to win it.

Bench Almost Bunted To Lead Off In Ninth

BOSTON (UPI) — Everybody comes up with a crazy idea once in awhile. Besides, Johnny Bench didn't see where this one was so crazy.

He was going to try to bunt leading off the ninth inning with the Boston Red Sox leading the Cincinnati Reds, 2-1, in Sunday's second World Series game.

Why not?

He was one of the best bunters on the ball club, wasn't he?

The big thing was to get on base now, wasn't it? Get on base any way he possibly could.

Only Huskers, Sooners Unbeaten In Big Eight

Kansas City (AP) — And then there were two, Oklahoma and Nebraska, just as everyone expected before the football season started.

Second-ranked Oklahoma and fourth-ranked Nebraska were the only Big Eight Conference teams with spotless records Sunday.

Both had 5-0 marks after the Sooners knocked off fifth-ranked Texas 24-17 Saturday, and Nebraska shut out Kansas 16-0. Oklahoma State, No. 14, suffered its first defeat, a 41-14 loss to 12th-ranked Missouri. Iowa State scored its fifth straight victory, whipping Kansas State 17-7, and Colorado, No. 13, turned back Miami of Florida, 23-10 in a Friday night battle.

The Big Eight wound up its season against outsiders with a 27-4 record.

Steve Davis and Horace Ivory saved Oklahoma's day against the Long Horns.

Davis, the quarterback, changed "Barry Switzer's play at the scrimmage line," sending fullback Ivory to the left instead of to the right, and Ivory ripped off guard, running 33 yards for the winning touchdown midway through the final quarter.

Defensive end Mike Phillips

fell on a wild pitch in the end zone and Joe Washington, who ran 16 times for 76 yards, romped nine yards for the other Oklahoma touchdown.

Tony DiRienzo kicked a 45 yard field goal for the Sooners, who blew a 10 point lead before extending their streak of games without defeat to 34.

Nebraska contained the Jayhawk's Nolan Cromwell, shutting the Kansas quarterback off with only 62 yards in 19 carries.

In the two games preceding the scrap with the Huskers, Cromwell had rushed for 481 yards.

Mike Coyle kicked field goals of 38, 22, and 32 yards, one in each of the first three quarters, before Terry Luck fired a 26-yard pass to Brad Jenkins for a touchdown in the fourth period. Kansas is 3-2.

Steve Pisarkiewicz and Henry Marshall, of Missouri, 4-1, ganged up on the Cowboys, also 4-1.

Pisarkiewicz connected on 20 of 27 passes for 371 yards and two touchdowns.

Marshall caught both touchdown passes, one for 32 yards and the other for 75.

Marshall hauled in seven passes for 200 yards, breaking the old Big Eight record of 203 yards set by Jim Doran, of Iowa State, against Oklahoma in 1950.

O-State lost its quarterback Jimmy Derrick, on the game's fifth play with a knee injury.

Derrick's successor Scott Berk hit Gerald Bain with a 72-yard touchdown pass, and Terry Miller ran five yards for the Cowboy's other TD.

Iowa State, 4-1, broke loose for 10 points in the last quarter to beat K-State 3-2.

The points came on Doug Lenth's 32-yard field goal, breaking a 7-7 deadlock, and 39-yard pass from Tom Mason to Glover Rogers with 6 minutes, 23 seconds left.

Kansas State had pulled into a 7-7 first half tie on Joe Hatcher's one-yard sneak.

Colorado, 4-1, defeated Miami on Dave Williams' passing.

Saturday's schedule: Kansas at Iowa State; Oklahoma at Kansas State; Nebraska at Oklahoma State; Missouri at Colorado.

Walters earned his ace with a seven iron on the 153-yard No. 3 hole with Ed Miesenhof and Mike Staley witnessing the event.

Only Huskers, Sooners Unbeaten In Big Eight

Kansas City (AP) — And then there were two, Oklahoma and Nebraska, just as everyone expected before the football season started.

Second-ranked Oklahoma and fourth-ranked Nebraska were the only Big Eight Conference teams with spotless records Sunday.

Both had 5-0 marks after the Sooners knocked off fifth-ranked Texas 24-17 Saturday, and Nebraska shut out Kansas 16-0.

Oklahoma State, No. 14, suffered its first defeat, a 41-14 loss to 12th-ranked Missouri. Iowa State scored its fifth straight victory, whipping Kansas State 17-7, and Colorado, No. 13, turned back Miami of Florida, 23-10 in a Friday night battle.

The Big Eight wound up its season against outsiders with a 2-7 record.

Steve Davis and Horace Ivory saved Oklahoma's day against the Long Horns.

Davis, the quarterback, changed "Barry Switzer's play at the scrimmage line," sending fullback Ivory to the left instead of to the right, and Ivory ripped off guard, running 33 yards for the winning touchdown midway through the final quarter.

Defensive end Mike Phillips

fell on a wild pitchout in the end zone and Joe Washington, who ran 16 times for 76 yards, romped nine yards for the other Oklahoma touchdown.

Tony DiRienzo kicked a 45 yard field goal for the Sooners, who blew a 10 point lead before extending their streak of games without defeat to 34.

Nebraska contained the Jayhawk's Nolan Cromwell, shutting the Kansas quarterback off with only 62 yards in 19 carries.

In the two games preceding the scrap with the Huskers, Cromwell had rushed for 481 yards.

Mike Coyle kicked field goals of 38, 22, and 32 yards, one in each of the first three quarters, before Terry Luck fired a 26-yard pass to Brad Jenkins for a touchdown in the fourth period. Kansas is 3-2.

Steve Pisarkiewicz and Henry Marshall, of Missouri, 4-1, ganged up on the Cowboys, also 4-1.

Pisarkiewicz connected on 20 of 27 passes for 371 yards and two touchdowns.

Marshall caught both touchdown passes, one for 32 yards and the other for 75.

Marshall hauled in seven passes for 209 yards, breaking the old Big Eight record of 203 yards set by Jim Doran, of Iowa State, against Oklahoma in 1950.

O-State lost its quarterback Jimmy Derrick, on the game's fifth play with a knee injury.

Derrick's successor Scott Burk hit Gerald Bain with a 72-yard touchdown pass, and Terry Miller ran five yards for the Cowboy's other TD.

Iowa State, 4-1, broke loose for 10 points in the last quarter to beat K-State 3-2.

The points came on Doug Lenth's 32-yard field goal, breaking a 7-7 deadlock, and 38-yard pass from Tom Mason to Glover Rogers with 6 minutes, 23 seconds left.

Kansas State had pulled into a 7-7 first half tie on Joe Hatcher's one-yard sneak.

Colorado, 4-1, defeated Miami on Dave Williams' passing.

Saturday's schedule:
Kansas at Iowa State;
Oklahoma at Kansas State;
Nebraska at Oklahoma State;
Missouri at Colorado.

WFL Sets Meeting

Memphis, Tenn. (UPI)—World Football League owners, apparently with their backs to the wall again, are to hold a "critical" meeting in New York Monday to discuss the troubled league's future, Memphis Southern owner John Bassett said Sunday.

"You're damned right it could be critical," said Bassett, confirming plans for the meeting.

"I can't say what will happen," answered Bassett when asked whether folding the league was a possibility. "Anything could happen."

One possible result of Monday's meeting reportedly could be folding Portland and Philadelphia, the two WFL franchises hurting most at the gate.

Portland drew an average of 8,861 fans to its first six home games and the league already has assessed its other nine teams.

A major problem for the league, which was revived through the financial wizardry of WFL President Chris Hemminger after a disastrous opening season last year, is the lack of a major television contract.

Kidnaped Boy, 15, Found After Year

By United Press International
The father of a 15-year-old boy, who was kidnapped in Clarksville, Tenn., after apparently being held captive for more than one year, said Sunday night the boy's family had given up seeing the youth again.

FBI agents and Washington State officials freed Walter Todd Bequette, about 11:30 p.m. Saturday on a tip from a private investigator who had been working on the case since shortly after the boy was kidnapped.

Young Bequette had been missing since April 18, 1974, when he was kidnapped after stepping off an Omaha school bus. He was expected to fly in to Omaha, Monday, accompanied by investigator Denny Whelan after bad weather grounded planes in Washington state on Sunday.

Authorities said he had been kept heavily drugged or sedated for much of the time he was missing.

"I'm very elated — the whole family is extremely happy over this," Walter's father, Gerald Bequette, said in a telephone interview Sunday night. "Of course I'd more or less given up ever seeing him again."

The elder Bequette and his wife have 10 children, including his and hers from previous marriages. Bequette has worked for Northern Natural Gas Co. in Omaha for 18 years as an aircraft mechanic.

The suspected kidnaper, Terry Ray Holman, was being held in Spokane, Wash., awaiting an appearance before a federal judge. In addition to charges in connection with the Bequette case, Holman is wanted for questioning in the March, 1974, slaying of a young Oklahoma boy and on bogus check charges.

The elder Bequette said the part-time investigator had "worked countless hours, days and weeks with no compensation and jeopardized his job." And Bequette credited Whelan, the director of Council Bluffs' Total Awareness — a drug-alcohol abuse organization — with the rescue of the youth.

Bequette said he hadn't talked with his son as of Sunday night but he said the family had been informed Walter was in good physical health.

"I understand physically he's okay — but mentally we don't know. Denny can't really know but he believes he's (Walter) in a state of shock. Until we talk with him we just don't know."

Open Market To Sell Pumpkins

If you're looking for fresh pumpkins and squash you may want to check the last downtown open market of the season on Oct. 18.

According to Lancaster County Extension Agent Emery Nelson, the last open market of the season on 12th between O and N Streets will feature pumpkins, squash and melons.

It will also give gardeners an opportunity to sell the fruits from their fall crops.

The market, which was a new undertaking for Lincoln this year, was opened in late June and ran through August.

Although there were some problems, Nelson said he felt it was "really quite successful."

He said generally the people who offered items for sale were satisfied as were the customers who purchased the fresh homegrown fruits and vegetables.

"Many people just don't realize how good fresh vegetables are," he said, predicting that the market will grow as people become more familiar with the operation.

Ann Woodward, 1955 Murder Suspect, Dies

New York (AP)—Ann Woodward, the blonde beauty exonerated 20 years ago in the shotgun slaying of her multimillionaire sportsman husband, William Woodward Jr., has died at the age of 57.

Her body was found in her luxurious Fifth Avenue duplex Friday night. The medical examiner's office said Sunday the cause of death has not been determined although Mrs. Woodward had a history of heart ailments.

The death of Woodward, owner of Nashua, then America's most famous race horse, was one of the major news stories of 1955. Nashua beat Swaps in a match race that August in one of the most highly publicized of all turf events.

Mrs. Woodward told a Nassau county grand jury she fired the blast which killed her husband, but said she thought she had shot a prowler.

Other witnesses testified that the Woodwards had been alarmed by a series of intruders at their Oyster Bay home and both took shotguns to bed when they retired to their separate rooms that night, Oct. 30.

The grand jury ruled that "no crime has been committed."

Later, a 23-year-old man admitted that he had attempted burglary at the Woodward home that night. Police said his appearance inadvertently touched off the killing of Woodward.

Mrs. Woodward, a daughter of the late Col. and Mrs. J.C. Crowell of Kansas City, used the name Ann Eden during her career as one of the country's top models and as "the most beautiful girl in radio."

She is survived by two sons, William and James.

Offutt Air Base Programs Cited

Omaha (UPI)—Two public service programs sponsored by Offutt Air Force Base have been recognized by the Omaha-Douglas County Bicentennial Commission.

The programs are citizenship classes and the summer recreation, employment and youth counseling program.

The citizenship classes are 14 weeks in length and are offered in February for foreign-born persons interested in becoming U.S. citizens.

Time Passed

Austin, Tex. (UPI)—The first institution for the insane in Texas was created by legislation signed by the governor Aug. 28, 1856. By 1866, the institution was already overcrowded, but it wasn't until 1983 that the legislature voted to expand the facilities.
